Not made by the trust. Food prepared with Calumet Baking Powder is pure and healthful and is free from Rochelle salts, lime, alum and ammonia.

Trust Baking Powders sell for 45 or 50 cents per pound and may be identified by this exorbitant price. They are a menace to public health, as food prepared from them contains large quantities of Rochelle salts, a dangerous cathartic drug.

GRAND RAPIDS FORGING AHEAD

OUR ADVANTAGES AND PROGRESS VIVIDLY PORTRAYED.

G. E. Vandercook, Who Travels for the Milwaukee Sentinel, Was in the City on Monday and Tells of the City in the Following Words.

[Special Dispatch to the Sentinel.] GRAND RAPIDS, Wis., Aug. 10.—Physical conditions, such as dividing a town by a stream, frequently exercise a retarding influence upon the growth and development of cities and villages. For over a half century two fairly good towns were located on the banks of the old Wisconsin with a factional business, social, and political rivalry existing which resulted in both Grand Rapids and Centralia being outstripped in industrial lines and in the process of city building by less favorably located towns up the river.

This factional spirit obtained for so long and grew so intense that the influence permeated the children of the two towns. When the boys of Grand Rapids attempted to cross the river they were stoned back to their own side, and Centralia urchins were treated in the same way, the parents sharing in the feeling which provoked and engendered jealousy.

Towns United Three Years Ago.

About three years ago a broader public spirit had its birth and the citizens commenced to realize that there should be no division of civic interest; that the welfare of both towns was interdependent and that there was a business, social and municipal relationship existing which, in the future, should be the bond between them. The estrangement and factionalism of years was forgotten, and the towns of Grand Rapids and Centralia became one under a new charter and organization, and, under the name of Grand Rapids, a united, thrifty and enterprising city in the achievement.

While the consolidation affecting the two municipalities no doubt had something to do with the change in conditions to be noted, Grand Rapids owes to the fact that her advantageous location entitled her to something better than she had experienced in all the years of the past. In the industrial evolution spreading over Wisconsin, the magic like influence which transforms sleepy, slow going towns and cities into energetic manufacturing centers, is nowhere more to be witnessed than in Grand Rapids. This transformation has come within the last two or three years and the results already accomplished indicate the creation of a new and important manufacturing city in Wisconsin, which, in the process of development and building, will rival many of the manufacturing centers of the state.

Rapids to Be Turned to Wealth.

The basis for what has already been done and what is now being executed in the way of building up manufacturing is the extensive water power furnished at this point by the Wisconsin river. During the old days of log driving and before the advent of the railways to transport the lumber to market, when the old Wisconsin was lined with lumber raft, there was no spot on the river more feared by the raftsmen than the rapids from which the town takes its name. Here hundreds of hardy men disappeared beneath the churning water, until it became a matter of river distinction to be able to say that a riverman had safely run Grand Rapids. This immense power, for so many years unused, is at last to be utilized to turn the wheels of the industries of this city, and, unless plans fail, the surplus power will be transmitted electrically to other towns and cities in this section.

The immense work of dam and mill building is now going on, conducted by hundreds of men and backed by an aggregate of capital which insures the success of the venture beyond the question of a doubt. Some time since this water power and the riparian rights became the property of the Consolidated Water Power and Paper company, the rights of other holders being purchased. To show the capitalists back of one of the largest industrial movements in Wisconsin, it can be stated that the principal stockholders in the company are the Witter estate, owning 201 shares, the Johnson estate with sixty shares, P. McKinnon, thirty shares, W. D. Connor, twenty-five shares, the balance of the stock being distributed among local holders.

Will Create Over 8,000 Horsepower.

At the present time the work on the dam and immense paper mill is being rushed as rapidly as the labor supply will permit, and the plans have been made to have the plant in operation during this fall. The claim is made that this dam now in process of building will create over 8,000 horse power, sufficient to supply motive power to the mills, and, in addition, furnish power to a number of other important industries now being put in or already in operation.

In addition to the paper mill industry of local importance, the extensive paper and pulp mills of the Centralia Pulp and Water Power company, the J. Edwards Manufacturing company, the Grand Rapids Pulp and Paper company—all located in close range—have an industrial bearing upon the welfare of this city, for many of the laboringmen reside here and this is the base of supply.

Distinct from the paper mills, among other important industries of the city is the extensive flouring mill plant of the Grand Rapids Milling company, with an entirely new modern mill and elevator, the erection of which was made necessary by the fact that the development of the water power made it necessary to abandon the old plant. The Badger Box and Lumber company, in which A. H. Stange, the well known Merrill lumberman, is interested, has doubled its manufacturing capacity during the last year. One of the largest employers of labor in the city is the furniture factory of Oberbeck Brothers, who employ a minimum of at least 300 hands the year around. The MacKinnon Manufacturing company has recently added to its extensive hub and spoke mills a complete establishment for the manufacture of wagons, and employs from 75 to 100 hands. The Lyons Manufacturing company is conducting the business of turning out inside finishings, and is gradually increasing the size of its plant.

Has Fine Railroad Facilities.

So far as railroad communications are concerned, Grand Rapids is exceedingly well located. For many years it was one of the principal stations on the Milwaukee road and the Green Bay and Western railway. Two years ago the Northwestern built through from Princeton to Marshfield, opening up an extensive agricultural section, well settled and rich in resources. The Wisconsin Central purchased what was known as the Port Edwards road, connecting that point with Marshfield, at about the same time that the Northwestern completed its line. This gives Grand Rapids the benefit of every road of any consequence in the state, and makes it a railroad center of considerable importance. From the viewpoint of future development along manufacturing lines, few towns in Wisconsin can claim the advantages of better railroad facilities.

Coming with this industrial activity is a consequent agricultural development in the surrounding sections which will soon place Wood county among the list of well settled farming counties of the state. Reliable business men, owners of extensive tracts of land from which they have removed the timber, state that all of the farm lands of Wood county practically have changed hands during the last five years. These lands principally have fallen into the hands of actual settlers, who have gone into farming and are succeeding beyond most sanguine expectations.

New Industry Is Sheep Fattening.

The claim is made that during the last three years more settlers have come into Wood county than in any section of the state. As an incident of agricultural development it can be stated that the stockmen of the west are taking advantage of this locality to ship sheep from Wyoming and Montana, which are being pastured here, their owner purchasing a tract of 4,000 acres for the purpose, located in the border towns between Wood and Adams counties.

In the matter of municipal improvements Grand Rapids is taking steps in advance of many of the cities that have enjoyed greater industrial activity in the past. It is estimated that, during the last year, between $150,000 and $175,000 have been expended for waterworks and sewer improvements alone, while large amounts have been expended for street and sidewalk improvements.

Educational Advantages Substantial.

Few towns in the west have as complete and excellent a school equipment in buildings and facilities. Recently the new Lincoln High school has been completed at a cost approximating $60,000, and, in addition, there are four other modern school buildings. Connected with the Lincoln school is the County Normal Training school for teachers, Wood county following in the lead of Marathon by being one of the first counties in the central portion of the state to take advantage of this feature connected with the common school system of the state. Ultimately it is planned to erect and equip a separate building for the county training school, and to make this an important step in the training of the teachers of the county.

An educational project of considerable influence is planned when the bequest of the late J. D. Witter to the city of Grand Rapids becomes available, three years from now. This bequest gave the board of education of this city $50,000 to be devoted to educational purposes, and it is planned to build a manual training school with a domestic science department.

There is not a vacant dwelling house in Grand Rapids nor is there an unoccupied room suitable to accommodate residents. Real estate men and builders assert that 400 cottages would not furnish accommodations for those who desire to make this city their home, and who have come here as laborers. A new manufacturing concern in the nature of a large machine shop is looking for a location, and negotiations are now pending for a site. This will be consummated during the week it is claimed and represents an investment of at least $25,000. New business blocks are being built and planned, and the next year will show a building boom never before experienced in the city.

In Justice Court.

John Rosendran was brought before Justice Brown on Friday on a charge of being drunk. The judge made it $5 and costs and as John did not see fit to liquidate he was given five days in the county jail.

Nelson Strait, an old soldier from Arpa was brought before Justice Brown on Saturday on a charge of indecent exposure. He was found guilty and given twenty days in the county jail for his misdemeanor. The day before Strait was taken before Judge Conway and examined as to his sanity, but the judge decided that in spite of his actions he was sane and he was discharged of this score.

ROBBERY AT RUDOLPH.

Aged Man Beaten and Robbed at his Home by Midnight Visitors.

Conrad Grab and Mary Grab, his daughter, who reside in the town of Rudolph about half way between this city and Stevens Point, were in the city on Friday. The girl stated that two men had appeared at their home about one o'clock Friday morning, and gaining admission to the house by rapping, had demanded the money in the house.

The girl stated that at first the demand was refused, whereupon they set upon the old man and beat him in a brutal manner. The girl then secured a satchel containing $11, and handing it to the men, ran away. She states that the men pursued her and fired two shots after her, neither of which took effect.

A statement was made before Justice Brown of the facts in the case and an effort is being made to locate the two robbers, although nothing has been heard of them as yet.

Hunting Licenses Received.

County Clerk Renne received his first consignment of hunting licenses on Thursday, and in spite of the fact that it is yet several weeks before the hunting season opens, he has already issued a number of licenses to hunters. R. H. Bullis of Dexterville secured No. 1 of the lot and business has since been moving along fairly good.

There is a slight difference in the licenses this year. They are printed on white cardboard instead of yellow as last year, and two of the coupons are fastened on each end of the license which enables the hunter to detach them according to law.

Last year the coupons were all on one end, and the law stated that they were not good if detached, and it was impossible to get two of the coupons off that matched with out the detaching the third, so that the law could not be complied with to the letter. However, it is doubtful if this made any difference to the average hunter.

The indications are that there will be a large number of licenses issued this year, but the number should not be as large as last year, as the age limit is raised, hunters are not allowed to sell game, and farmers are allowed to hunt on their own land without a license, and all of these things should contribute in a measure to a reduction in the number of licenses issued.

Death of Hazel Decker.

Hazel, the sixteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Decker of this city, died on Thursday, August 6th, after an illness of considerable length. Miss Hazel had been ailing more or less for the past six years, and although everything possible had been done to aid her it was impossible to save her life, and she passed away peacefully with her friends about her.

The funeral was held from the home on Friday, Rev. B. J. H. Shaw conducting the funeral services, and a large concourse of friends followed the remains to their last resting place.

The members of the Congregational society had lined the grave so that it presented a very beautiful appearance and everything possible was done to mitigate the sorrow of the grief stricken parents, who have the sympathy of the community in their affliction.

New Graphite Plant.

The Pioneer Graphite Co. has under consideration plans and specifications for a crushing and pulverizing plant to be erected in the graphite property at Junction City. It is probable that active work on the plant will be commenced early in September and that the mill will be ready to run by January 1. The plant will be a rather pretentious structure and will be equipped with all the facilities necessary to make all the usual graphite products. The property of this company is located a little to the north of the Wisconsin Graphite Co.'s claims and is within 70 rods of the Milwaukee tracks. It is expected a spur will be laid into the mill site at an early date.—Stevens Point Journal.

In Supreme Court.

The cases of Mrs. Lydia Duncan and Mrs. Anna Lyon have been noticed for trial in the supreme court, and will probably come up some time in December if nothing unforeseen intervenes.

Mrs. Duncan got judgment against the city for $1,000 in circuit court for injuries received on a defective sidewalk, but the city officers consider this amount excessive.

Mrs. Lyon was awarded damages in the sum of $1,000 by the jury, but Judge Webb cut this amount down to $250, considering that the amount awarded by the jury was excessive. The plaintiffs are both represented in the supreme court by Conway & Jeffrey and Groggins & Brazeau have the city's side of the case.

Notice To Hunters.

All persons are warned and hereby notified not to hunt on the lands of the Taylor & Hogg company, known as the sheep ranch in the town of Rome, Adams county. Also to keep their dogs off the land, as any dog caught worrying the sheep will be shot without further notice.

GEORGE TAYLOR.

Work Progressing on Bridge.

The east span of the bridge was finished on Monday with the exception of the planking on the walkway. The workmen have removed their hoisting engine to the west side and will operate from there hereafter.

New Cranberry Company.

A new Cranberry Company has been organized in this city during the past week, which will be known as the Jacob Searles Cranberry company. The new organization will be a stock company and all of the stock has been subscribed for, although the charter has not been secured as yet.

The members of the new company are Jacob Searles, John A. Gaynor, Geo. W. Paulus, Dr. O. T. Hougren and F. J. Wood. They have secured an option on the W. C. Trahern marsh which comprises 1200 acres of land, about 100 acres of which is being picked. The land is located on both sides of the Green Bay & Western track at Walker station and joins the Searles Brothers marsh at that place.

Several of the members of the new company are already interested in cranberry culture and there is no reason why the venture should not be a success from a financial view point. The marsh they have purchased has been picked over for a number of years and has yielded good profits for the owner.

Life of Pope Leo.

The publishers of the Tribune have secured the right to sell the life of Pope Leo XIII in this section, and all readers of the Tribune have a chance to secure this valuable and interesting work at a nominal cost. The book is the work of the Rev. James J. McGovern, D. D., author of the "History of the Catholic Church in Illinois."

The book contains over five hundred pages and is profusely illustrated with fine half tone pictures. This book will be given as a premium with the Tribune, the cost of the paper for one year and the book being but $2.00. Many of these books are being sold by canvassers at $2.00 and $2.50 for the book alone, while the subscriber to the Tribune pays but 50 cents for it. This is cheaper than the books can be bought at wholesale in lots of 500.

There will also be a German edition of the book published in two or three weeks and where wanted the history will be furnished in the German language.

Remember that $2.00 gives you the Life of Pope Leo and the Tribune for one year, or if you are already a subscriber to the paper you can secure the book by paying all arrears and 2.00 for the coming year.

Entertained at Clinch.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Cady entertained at party of friends at their home on Thursday evening in honor of their guest, Miss Rose Appleton. The evening was spent in playing clinch and nine tables accommodating thirty-six players were in use.

Miss Ethel Kelley carried off the prize among the ladies for the largest number of games won and F. L. Steib was the champion among the gentlemen present, his skill in cutting the cards also contributing a share toward the victory. Miss Nellie Ward and Otto Reinius were awarded the consolation prizes. A very pleasant evening was spent by those present.

Broke a Leg.

Conductor H. L. Bartholomew met with a distressing accident on Friday evening which will result in incapacitating him from work for some time. He was out riding near the south side, and in passing a team he turned from the road and one of the wheels striking an obstruction he was thrown from the buggy and landed on the ground in such a manner that his left leg was broken near the ankle.

The fracture was reduced by a surgeon, and while no serious results are anticipated, the accident will necessarily keep him from taking his run for some time.

May Build Machine Shop.

William Libert of Kaukauna has been in the city the past few days looking over the city with a view to building a foundry and machine shop here.

Whether anything will come of the matter cannot be said at this time. Some of the business men have interested themselves in the matter, but most of the sites where a manufacturing plant could be located are held so high as to be almost prohibitive.

W. G. Hubbell Dead.

W. G. Hubbell of Plainfield, who was well known in this city and vicinity, died in the asylum at Oshkosh on the 3d of August, having been ailing for the past two years.

Mr. Hubbell formerly traveled thru this section selling grave stones and in this capacity made many acquaintances and friends. The funeral was held last Tuesday.

Lettor List.

East Side.—F. J. Cornolly, Joe Oudekiltz, Cecnie Jonson, Bert Miller, Jesse Parker, D. D. Robinson, O. L. Sherman, John L. Schewich, I. H. Stewart, Raymond Faal, Stevens Withers, Wm. J. Zingy, Miss Maggie Burns, Esther Dix, Ida Dummer, Dora Hess, Mrs. L. Heisbo, Mrs. John Schluenz.

West Side.—J. E. Krozickowski, Wm. Tennant.

Lawn Social.

The ladies of the Maccabees will give a reception on the joint lawn of J. D. Conway and Chas. Gothke Saturday afternoon and evening, Aug. 15th. Coffee, sandwiches, ice cream and cake and other dainties will be served at popular prices, a large attendance is desired and all are cordially invited.

Copyright, 1905, by T. C. McGuire.

Mrs. Maguire rolled up her hair with a nervous click of the needles.

"If that man don't quit hanging round here," she muttered, "this is the crazy house I'll be."

She rose and turned her back on the door of the outer waiting room. But the man's face haunted her. It was the helpless look in his eyes of one suddenly cut loose from the ordinary routine of life and cast adrift which Mrs. Maguire could not forget.

She had seen it many times in the last few days, occasionally during the hours when he stood watching outward bound passengers and more often as he scanned the occupants of the ladies' waiting room. In the weariness of his search the vigor of middle life was giving place to age.

"This neither food nor sleep he's had this week past," Mrs. Maguire thought and turned with a sudden determination to speak to him.

Even as she did so he staggered and sat down weakly. One hand went out and, grasping a newspaper which lay near, held it before his face. Above it his eyes were fixed in a hungry gaze. Mrs. Maguire knew that his search was ended.

She turned slowly, following the direction of his eyes, and noticed for the first time a small, pale woman sitting with her profile toward the door. The brown hair which lay softly on her temples was plentifully streaked with gray. Her blue eyes held the brightness of unshed tears. The hands, which held a shabby grip sack on her lap, clutched it as if it were some fast slipping resolve.

Mrs. Maguire left the room and went straight to the man who sat outside.

"Is that who you've been looking for?" she asked quietly.

He rose, his gaze away with a start of surprise and nodded.

"Your wife?"

"Yes."

Mrs. Maguire waited a moment. Then she ventured again:

"What did she leave you for?"

"Don't think it wasn't her fault"—He stopped, choking. "She thought I had stopped loving her."

Suddenly his face began to work. "Hester," he muttered, with groping fingers, "Hester you don't know—what the house is—without you!"

Mrs. Maguire laid a hand on his shoulder and shook him slightly.

"Look here," she demanded, "is it trying to live without food or sleep you've been this past week?"

His eyes had gone back to the quiet figure in the ladies' waiting room as if he gazed losing sight of it even for a moment. His face held the look of one for whom all things were at an end.

Mrs. Maguire left him and sauntered slowly back to her own domain. Presently she approached the woman with the shabby grip sack.

"Was it you who was asking me about the western trains, ma'am?" she inquired casually.

"No." The woman's eyes were raised in mild surprise for a moment as she shook her head.

"This is more comfortable chair you might as well have if you're long to wait," Mrs. Maguire said civilly.

"Thank you, but it is hardly worth while."

Still Mrs. Maguire lingered with such evident desire to do something for the comfort of this passenger that the latter felt constrained by her kindly intent to speak again. "The express for New York leaves at 9:35, does it not?" she asked.

"Yes, ma'am, at 9:35."

Then Mrs. Maguire moved away. She picked up a magazine and leisurely replaced it on the table, shook out some pillows on a couch near the door and slipped outside.

"This to New York she's going," she whispered eagerly to the man who still held the paper before his face. "You've got twenty minutes. Take your ticket, and for the love of heaven, don't let something cut in. This fairly staggering you are."

What Mrs. Maguire did not see and never knew of took place a quarter of an hour later when a woman, entering the vestibule of a shopping car, swayed and lost her balance as the engine backed against the train.

For a sickening second her eyes closed. Her hands went out gropingly, dropping the grip sack they had held.

Then the arm that was as the arm of youth in the strength of his love went round her. With a blessed sense of safety, her eyes opened and rested on the well worn edge of a familiar overcoat which only a few weeks before her own fingers had repaired.

"Hester!"

In the wavering light the face of the man, who through love of her and hers of her had aged within a week, was white with pleading.

And the woman stumbled forward against his breast.

N. L. JAMES CUMMINS.

What She Thought.

"Was she willing to pay so much for such an insignificant husband?" asked the foundation girl.

"Oh, dear, no," replied the well posted girl. "She was buying a position in English society when she took the duke and not a husband. He was simply done up in the package."—Chicago Post.

AND MYRE DEATH.

Purple is the Most Lethal of All Colors, and Scarlet is Nearly as Bad. Blue Will Stimulate the Brain, but It Will Wreck the Nerves.

If purple walls and red shaded windows surrounded you for a month, with no color but purple around you, by the end of that time you would be a madman. No matter how strong the brain might be, it would not stand the strain, and it is declared if you would ever recover your reason, for purple is the most dangerous color there is in its effects on the brain, which it reaches by way of the nerves of the eye.

A splash of one of any other color in the room would save your reason for some time longer, but a dead purple would kill you eventually as surely as would red ink. Scarlet is as bad, but scarlet has a different effect. It produces what is called hereditary mania—a madness that drives its victim to kill his fellows, especially his nearest relatives. Given on animals scarlet has this effect. It will drive a bull or a tiger to charge a naked spear. But purple, on the contrary, brings on melancholy or suicidal mania.

Blue, as long as there is no trace of red in it, stimulates the brain and helps it, but its effect on your nerves, if you are saturated with it and cannot get away from it, is terrible. Scientists class blue as a kind of drug in its effects on the brain.

It excites the imagination and gives a craving for music and stagecraft, but it has a reaction that wrecks the nerves. If you don't stare hard for a few minutes at a large sheet of bright blue paper or cloth or flowers, for there is a good deal of green in their blue—and you will find that it will make your eyes ache and give you a restless, uneasy feeling.

Green, on the other hand, is the king of colors, and no amount of it can do any harm. On the contrary, it soothes the whole system and preserves the eyesight. If you were shut up in an artificial green light for a month it would develop your eyesight immensely, but it would be fatal, because when you returned to the world you would be utterly unable to stand ordinary lights and colors and you would certainly contract ophthalmia, or possibly destroy the optic nerve altogether unless you were very mindful to take great care.

Most people imagine the sky in clear weather to be blue. It is really white tinged with green. It is only the distance and clearness which make it seem blue.

Green is so soothing that it makes a big difference in the length of an illness, helping the system to fight the disease, and nearly all hospital wards have every possible detail about them colored green. Sage green is the most soothing tint of all metallic green, however, is by no means so good.

Solitary confinement in a yellow cell for six weeks will hopelessly weaken any system and produce chronic hysteria. A long course of it will produce foolish lunacy, and even on a guinea pig or a rabbit will drive the animal at last to bite and wound itself or reduce it to such a state of nervousness that it will die of sheer fright if suddenly startled.

On the other hand, if you are not smothered with it yellow is the healthiest, cheeriest color there is, and will make a dark room bright and habitable when even green would be cold and depressing. But to be well "sensed" with yellow day and night, and to be unable to get away from it, would bring you to nervous madness within two months at the outside.

Sheer dead white, unbroken, will destroy your eyesight as surely as extract would if you are exposed to it for a few days—a week at the latest. It kills the optic nerves, and the slight reds out like a candle, while the effect on the brain is so maddening that blindness is almost a relief.

This is why arctic explorers have to wear colored "goggles" of green tinted glass; otherwise "snow blindness," as it is called, and which is really "white blindness," is almost a certainty. Even in the polar regions, though, the white is not complete. The sky breaks it. If it did not no man could keep his eyesight there without glasses. New York News.

Not Serious.

"How is your brother the poet?"

"He has just undergone an operation. You would hardly recognize him; he is so altered."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; he has had an epidematoid growth removed from his head."

"Poor fellow! Was it anything very serious?"

"Not at all. He has only had his hair cut."

It is every one's secret hope that when the time comes for him to hand his baggage over to Death to be checked he will not be afraid.—Athenian Globe.

An extremely important point in the law of life is the question of a man's health and his character. A man's health is the foundation of his life, and his character is the foundation of his success. A man's health is the foundation of his life, and his character is the foundation of his success.

As a matter of course, the proposed solution to this problem is to open the massive door, to open the combination of which it was evident he did not know. He had, however, resorted to an ingenious plan of his own.

He had passed the tail of his index finger on the right hand until the blood vessels were exposed. Then by placing the sensitive wound on the combination lock he could distinguish the movements of the tumblers as they fell. For more than an hour did he work, and at last there came a sharp click, and he swung back the doors of the safe.

He was in the net of filling his pockets with the valuable papers it contained when a danger was thrown upon his activity by the sudden grasp of the detective, under whose escort he was taken to prison.—London Tit-Bits.

Danger in "Home Remedies."

"The trouble with poor persons who try to doctor themselves before coming here," said a physician in a public dispensary, "is that they do not know the first thing about the 'simple remedies' as they call them, that they use. Oftentimes they do themselves serious injury through sheer ignorance. I had a man in here the other day who had taken half an ounce of cholera mixture. Somebody had told him to take half a teaspoonful. It is the same way with paracetic, sweet niter, ammonia and other well known household remedies. Persons who trust to their memory are likely to get mixed and either take an overdose or use the wrong medicine. A woman came in here suffering from the effects of a drug that she should never have obtained except on a physician's prescription. It was the big overdose and her prompt application for relief that saved her. When I scolded her she showed me a clipping from one of the magazines advising its use. The dose prescribed was enough to kill a horse!"—New York Times.

The Menu Card in Its First Form.

In its old fashioned form the menu was usually written large on cards of such imposing dimensions that room for one only could be found at each end of the board. In the medieval dinner this aid to selection must have been an absolute necessity, for the medieval dinner was a mine of surprises. It was divided into courses, as are our own dainty meals, but whereas nowadays the diner has a general idea that fish will follow soup and that entrée is succeeded by roture, and can conceive generally the sort of demand that each course will make upon his appetite and digestion, there was no possible arguing as to what was going to happen at an early English dinner, and close study falls to reveal the existence of any principle of arrangement.

Discrediting an Astrologer.

A certain king, says a tale from the Persian, asked an astrologer, "How many years of life remain to me?" The wise man replied, "Ten." The king became very despondent and betook himself, as one stricken with a sickness, to his bed. His vizier, who possessed great wisdom, sent for the seer and in the king's presence asked him, "How many years have you to live?" He replied, "Twenty." The vizier ordered that he should that very hour be executed in the king's presence. The king was satisfied and commended the sagacity of his minister, and no longer attached any importance to the astrologer's saying.

Eggs and Pairs.

A writer in the Chicago Tribune says: "My people came from the north of Ireland. My great grandfather always stuck his knife through the bottom of his eggshells after he had eaten breakfast. My grandfather and father followed his example through force of habit, and now I have contracted it. If you don't break the shells the turkeys can use them for beds and can even build houses of water thus. In the north of Ireland there are good fairies and bad fairies. The bad fairies will play tricks on you if they can catch you. You can humor their movements by breaking their beads."

Poetical Conceit.

Sir Walter Scott was asked why he had made Ellen Douglas the lady of the lake.

"Because," he replied, "if I had made her the lady of the river there might have been a run on the bank."

Boasting the poet's preliminary confessions, his friends congratulated him on his foresight.—New York Tribune.

The Absurdity of It.

State, being the most important factor in the economy of the state. It is the most important factor in the economy of the state. It is the most important factor in the economy of the state.

It is usually kept on the by the most exact register. The fact that he is worked at all hours by a man of perfect machinery. If he stands a chance of 15 cents he is caught, you may say. Not at all. The other day a man, who was able to work the propeller on his and pumps, "rolled down" one of his men before some customers. As to the question of right or wrong I say nothing. But presently, when Skrappe's property turned his back, the man emptied a full bottle of the finest whiskey into the washbasin trough under the bar. It was worth at least $1.50. That was his way of getting even. I am informed that it is the usual way of resenting an insult from the proprietor. The mere stealing of 15 cents is a small matter when the bar man is to be trusted with thousands of dollars' worth of liquors. If a man is not to be trusted with change how is he to be trusted with liquors?—New York Press.

Grammar and Writing.

One day Julian Hawthorne was complimenting a certain writer on his wonderful facility in his handling of words and in his construction of sentences. "You are a master of phrases," said the novelist, with a twinkle, and then added:

"How do you do it, anyhow?"

"I don't know," replied the writer. "You see, I have forgotten all that I ever learned at school except that the proposition governs the objective case. To save my life I couldn't tell you the difference between the present tense and a predicate. I write by ear and don't know any more about grammar than a cockroach knows about painting roses on jugs."

"That's all right, my boy, that's all right," said Hawthorne dryly. "No man who's a purist and a master of style ever knows anything about grammar."

How Bright Joined Cobden.

John Bright's account of how he and Richard Cobden came to join forces against the corn laws early in the last century is as follows: "I was in the depths of grief, I might also say of despair, for the light and sunshine of my house had been extinguished. All that was left on earth of my life and of a too brief happiness was lying still and cold in the chamber above us. Mr. Cobden called upon me, and, having expressed words of condolence, said: 'There are thousands of houses in England at this moment where wives, mothers and children are dying of hunger. Now, when the first paroxysm of your grief is past I would advise you to come with me and we will never rest till the corn law is repealed.' The offer was accepted and the work was done."

A Queer Floating Island.

There is a floating island in Derwent-water, England, not far from Lodore falls. Its travelers are restricted to alternations between the bottom of the lake and the surface. When moved to retirement it sinks and remains in watery seclusion for periods which vary from a few months to as long as seven or eight years. Its existence above or below water appears to be determined by the presence within the island of gases whose quantity governs its buoyancy. Esthwaite lake, in the same neighborhood, boasts a not less puzzling but more amenable island. This has served as a ferryboat to conduct as many as fifteen persons at a time across the bosom of the water upon which it rides.

Affected It.—A noted Chicago wit and raconteur, addressing the Yale Society of New York, at which Chauncey Dewey was presiding, won the attention and applause of the wearied audience by saying: "A new and powerful geyser has been discovered in Yellowstone park. It was named after your presiding officer." Pausing, with solemn countenance, till the cheering had ceased, he added: "And it stimulates the geyser."

Gen. Miles Retirement

General Nelson A. Miles has been placed on the retired list, and from all that can be gathered, the administration was not very delicate in appraising of the fact. General Miles has been on the outs with the administration for some years, both the McKinley and Roosevelt factions, and the chief reason has seemed to be because he is failing for telling the truth, regardless of who might be effected thereby. Some times his sayings are retorted discredit upon the administration and at times on the head of the army but it made no matter who it was, they got just what they had come without any mincing of words. General Miles entered the army at the commencement of the civil war as a lieutenant, and thru his ability as a military man he has been advanced until he occupied one of the highest positions in the army. He was not a West Point graduate, and this fact has been against him among a class of men who, thru mutual admiration, have become so bigoted and arrogant to be disgusting in a great many instances to the people who are paying for their bread and butter. These West Pointers have for years had a penchant for belittling the work of a person who is not one of the pointed, and General Miles coming from this class has been against him all along the line. He may not have been set among the head ones in the army, but his deeds and honest have endeared his memory to the common people of the country, and he will be remembered long after his opponents have passed into oblivion.

A Growing Necessity.

One of the things that the city government should attend to at once, one that some future time it will be impossible to remedy, is the widening of certain streets about the city, that are now very narrow, and even at the present time hardly able to accommodate the traffic that passes over them. The city now gives promise of enjoying a steady growth, and there is every evidence that in years to come wider streets will be necessary than at the present time, and if any change is to be made it should be made at once. There are several thoroughfares in almost the heart of the city where two teams can hardly pass even with only a sidewalk, and if there were two lanes of ordinary width there would be a little road left. These changes could be made at the present time with very little cost, while at some future time when the streets are lined with brick blocks it will be an impossibility.

The Time to Advertise.

Much has been said about the best time to advertise, and it had been regarded as sort of a loss of energy to carry on an energetic advertising campaign during the hot summer months. This has all changed, however, and only the inexperienced advertiser bothers himself or anyone else about the time to advertise, for the experienced advertiser, regardless of what his line may be, is fully aware of the fact that the time to advertise is all the time. That this is thoroughly appreciated by the leading concerns of the country is proved by the expensive summer campaigns which they carry out. Of course advertising in the summer time should be different from that of the winter, but there should be no let up whatever in the advertising. Some people put forth the argument that the summer months are dull, but if these misguided souls will ask the man who has advertised they will find that he isn't at all in doldrums over the condition of trade, and the difference is the result of his advertising. The newspapers are perhaps a little too lax in their efforts to get the business man to advertise during the so-called "dull months," made so partly by the lack of advertising. That a number of newspapers having already grasped the situation and are profiting by their realization of the facts of the case is evident in their advertising columns. More than one enterprising newspaper is carrying more advertising in July than they did in the early winter months. If a paper doesn't get its share of business in the summer, then its patrons don't get their share and it is the paper's duty to convince the business men of their error and corral their business. By doing this a paper adds to its own profits and also to those of the business man.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abscess on my right lung," writes J. F. Hughes of DuPont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by John E. Daly Drug Store. Price 50c, and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

—Instructions in Shorthand and typewriting, Jessie Love.

One of the very first attractions of importance to be seen at the Grand Opera House will be the big rural comedy drama, "Quincy Adams Sawyer," which is now in the third season of continued success. The engagement here will be Oct. 2, 3 and 4, a rare treat to store for all theatre-goers who love that which is clean and exuberantly funny, with brilliant touches of refined pathos, in the bucolic drama.

"Quincy Adams Sawyer" has achieved an enviable distinction as the best of all the country plays, for the faults of productions of this class were avoided by the dramatist in making his play from that book of the same name which is still having a big sale throughout the entire country (though now in its fourth year,) and the result is that there is no element, such as realism, comedy, pathos, or sentiment predominating, but a subtle combination of all.

Above everything else the aim in "Quincy Adams Sawyer" has been to be lifelike and true to nature in both characters and the story. The accomplishment of this purpose has spelled the word success in capital letters. The time honored villains, farm mortgages, lost wills, cruel uncles, wronged girls, etc., which have done such valiant service in rural dramas for years are conspicuously and pleasingly absent in this play.

Aside from the engagement here "Quincy Adams Sawyer" will spend over four months of its time during the coming season, in four cities only. It will be seen for two months in New York City, one month in Philadelphia, three weeks in Boston, and two weeks in Chicago.

The production is a very elaborate one and includes some fine effects in scenic realism, all the acts taking place in the country, and all the characters, except "Quincy Adams Sawyer" himself and one other, being rural types. This is one of the very few plays that the theatre-goers really cannot afford to miss. Its tremendous success elsewhere and the lavish endorsement of the press liberally endorse this assertion.

Fire Alarm System Defective.

During a conversation with Manager Starks of the Wood County Telephone company recently, that gentleman stated that the fire alarm system recently installed had not given the satisfaction that had been hoped for it when installed. The original scheme had been to have gongs work at the different places where an alarm is sounded, the striking of the gongs being done by the operators in the telephone office.

The gongs were on a closed circuit, which necessitated a good sized battery to operate, and it was found upon testing up each morning that there was generally something the matter with the system so that the gongs failed to work satisfactorily. In order to remedy this defect the gongs have been replaced with ordinary telephone bells, which are rung by the operator the same as any telephone bell.

Another place where the system is defective is in the fact that when an alarm is turned in by phone the operator does not know in what ward the phone is located, so that the operator cannot give the required information to the engine house. Another defect lies in the fact that while we have a great many telephones in the city, still there are many places where a phone is not accessible, especially after working hours, and as consequence a night alarm could not be turned in without the loss of considerable valuable time. Mr. Starks is of the opinion that a system with boxes scattered about the city would prove much more effective as then the boxes could be located in any part of the city where they are needed.

The east side has had some experience with a box system, and the same trouble existed as is always the case in small towns. The system was found to be so often out of order that it gradually fell into disuse thru lack of confidence and in time was entirely abandoned. To keep an alarm system that is strung over an entire city in good working order requires constant attention, and it is only from the fact that our present system is connected with the telephone office where it is tested daily that we have received even passable service.

"A Royal Slave" Pleases Grand Patrons.

"A Royal Slave" opened a three nights' engagement at the Grand last night, and was witnessed by a good house. The play is a romantic drama in five acts taken from the historic novel, "The Last of the Montezumas." The scenes are laid in the Casas Grandes mountains, in the state of Chihuahua, Mexico and are wonderfully true to life. The cast, headed by Clarence Bennett, is strong and well balanced and taken as a whole the show is one of the best which has been at the Grand this season. Manager Kinneman stated last night that he was more than satisfied with the opening. It is the first venture in playing three night stands, and if the attendance warrants it Marion will be placed in the Stair-Havillan circuit, which plays only the best popular priced shows on the road. "A Royal Slave" will be given two performances to-day and tomorrow.—Marion, Indiana News-Tribune. Will be at the Grand Opera house to-morrow night. Don't miss it.

Mr. Charles Theobald, an electrician with the Lincoln Light and Power Co., Lincoln, Ill., says: "I am occasionally troubled with severe headaches, the result of constipation and have at numerous times used Re-Go Tonic Laxative Syrup, which I think is the most satisfactory in its results of any medicine. It moves the bowels naturally and promptly, without pain or griping, and certainly cures the headaches caused by constipation. The Badger Lumber Co. of Grand Rapids, in which A. H. Stange of this city is heavily interested, are engaged in doubling their plant and will in the near future greatly increase their business.

The A. H. Stange Co. expects to start up their saw mill which has been shut down for the past six or seven weeks for repairs in a few days.

While the saw mills of Merrill have anywhere from three to ten years ahead of them, the fact is demonstrated every once in a while that the pine timber on the Wisconsin and its tributaries is fast disappearing. Every now and then a saw mill is closed down here or there, which denotes, as we have said, the coming to end of the great pine lumber industries of northern Wisconsin. The going out of business of John O'Day & Co. of this city, for the past twelve years one of the largest logging concerns of northern Wisconsin, is a case in point. John O'Day & Co. have just finished loading their last logs which were cut last winter. They have sold their pine timber and disposed of the logging outfit. As soon as practical, the affairs of the company will be settled up. John O'Day & Co. was organized by Mr. John O'Day of this city, and Mr. John Daly of Grand Rapids, in 1892, about twelve years ago. In that time this concern has logged about 500,000,000 feet of logs. They have paid out hundreds of thousands of dollars for labor, merchandise, etc.

The Slaughter Goes On.

The rate at which our railroads are killing and maiming people continues steadily to increase. According to the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission on railroad accidents in the United States, within the three months ending March 31 last, 309 people were killed and 2,834 injured in train accidents. Other kinds of accidents, including those sustained by employees while at work, ran up the total casualties to 827 killed and 11,481 injured. That these accidents cannot be put down entirely to the fault of the passengers and employees themselves is shown by the fact that during the quarter under consideration, 1,650 trains were in collision and 1,181 trains were derailed.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklin's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best Salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25c, at John E. Daly's Drug Store.

Shipping Minnows.—Some of our neighbors from the cranberry marshes have worked up quite a lucrative business by sending minnows to the summer resorts both north and south of here where fishing is one of the amusements indulged in. The poorest of the minnows bring one cent a piece, and some of the larger choice ones cost the consumer two cents apiece, plus the freight. The fish caught on the marshes are what is known in this locality as "Mud" minnows, and they possess a great advantage over the shiner as bait from the fact that they live so readily when confined in narrow quarters, and also after being put onto the hook. In sections where shiners are used, a great deal of care has to be exercised in preserving the bait if it is the desire to have live minnows to fish with, while it is almost impossible to keep a batch of them over from one time to another. With the mud minnows very little care is necessary, the only thing necessary being to see that they are kept covered with water.

Illegal Hunting.—According to the statements of some of the hunters about town and that of farmers in this vicinity, there is more illegal hunting this year than there has been for some time. And this in the face of the fact that the state is never better supplied with game wardens appointed for the express purpose of protecting the game. All honest hunters want to see the game protected during the closed season, and are willing that the state should pay game wardens for this purpose, but it is rather discouraging to know that in spite of the immense amount of money that is expended every year, nothing is done toward accomplishing the purpose for which they are intended.

Caught The Kids.—An organ grinder with a monkey was in the city on Thursday and Friday, and the antics of the little animal amused many a kid about town, while the grown folks pretty generally took a hand in being amused also. The monkey had been trained to perform a number of tricks in a manner that was little short of human. The dago received several offers about town for his little pet, but turned them all down, as he well knew that his wind-broken hand organ would have proven a poor method of making a living without the monkey.

Preparing For Winter.—John Jones, a laborer who was employed on the dam, stole an overcoat and a pair of shoes from Joseph Goehy at the Chose house last week and started for new worlds to conquer. The sheriff caught him at Arpin and brought the boots, overcoat and Jones back. He was taken before Justice Brown where he paid a fine and costs amounting to $12.50, and departed minus the wearing apparel that he had intended for future use.

Wreck on the Green Bay.—A wreck occurred on the Green Bay and Western on Wednesday last which resulted in the east bound passenger not getting in here until about six o'clock in the evening. A pile driver and some other work cars were among the stuff damaged, and the trouble was caused by the breaking of an axle. The trouble occurred near Blair.

Brought a Fair Price.—The buildings on the Howe estate recently purchased by the school board were auctioned off on Thursday and knocked down to Mrs. Peter Dessaint, the highest bidder, for $530. This is a fair price when it is considered that the buildings will have to be moved before being put to any use.

A New Bus.—Hathaway & Whitney have received a new bus for the Witter House and it is a beauty. Rubber tires, leather upholstery, plate glass windows and polished brass trimmings. It is certainly a fine rig, the nicest thing of the kind that has ever been seen in town.

Lipchow-Young.—H. F. Lipchow and Mrs. Agnes Young were married on Saturday at the office of Justice Brown, Mr. Brown performing the ceremony. The wedding was a very quiet one, only a few intimate friends being present.

Lost a Finger.—John Ostrusky had to have the first finger of his right hand amputated on Saturday on account of a case of necrosis of the bone. The trouble was caused by an injury to the member some time ago.

A Pleasant Party.—About twenty couples assembled at the Elks hall on Tuesday evening and indulged in an informal hop to the enchanting strains of the Big Four. The evening was very pleasantly spent.

Y. P. S. C. E. Social.—The members of the Young People Society of Christian Endeavor will hold a social at the home of Mrs. Rossier on Thursday evening of this week to which all are invited.

Christian Scientists Organize.

CALUMET Baking Powder

Food prepared with Calumet Baking Powder is pure and healthful, and is free from Rochelle salts, alum, lime and ammonia. A wonderful powder of unequalled strength.

Trust Baking Powders sell for 45 or 50 cents per pound and may be identified by this trademark. They are a menace to public health, as food prepared from them contains large quantities of Rochelle salts, a dangerous cathartic drug.

UNION MADE CLOTHING

SLOT MACHINES

WILL SOON GO.

THIS IS ACCORDING TO ORDER OF THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

Saloon Keepers Given Until the 27th Instant to Abolish all Gambling Devices.—It is Probable That all Will Comply With the Law Without Opposition.

During the past week a notice was served upon all the saloon keepers of the city by the district attorney ordering them to take the slot machines out of their places of business, giving them until the 27th instant to accomplish same. Following is the notice served by the district attorney:

"To all Keepers, Managers, Users, etc. of Gambling Devices, Schemes and Contrivances, including Slot Machines, and to all persons permitting the same to be set up, kept, used or managed on their premises:

Complaints have been filed with me for the prosecution of all persons in any way interested in slot machines and other gambling devices in the city of Grand Rapids, supported by abundant evidence of the violation of the law in this respect.

As District Attorney it is my duty, on complaint being made, to prosecute all such violations of the law, but I have thought it proper and fairest to all concerned first to give this notice. You will note by reading Sections 4529, 4531, 4539 and 4840 and other provisions of the Statute, that the penalty involves imprisonment, heavy fine and the destruction of such slot machines and other gambling devices.

Notice is therefore hereby given that in case any such slot machines or gambling device is found in this city on or after the 27th day of August, 1903, all persons responsible therefor will be prosecuted and such slot machines and other gambling devices destroyed."

During a talk with Mr. Brazeau on the subject on Tuesday that gentleman stated that it would have been perfectly proper for him to go right ahead and prosecute any persons that were complained of for having gambling devices in their places of business, but that he considered no more than fair that a notice be given before any action was taken, as the slot machines have heretofore been allowed to exist without any objection.

An interview with some of the men who have machines in their saloons discloses the fact that many of them seem to care very little about the matter and are perfectly willing to take the machines out providing their competitors are compelled to do the same. Many of them seem to be glad of the change.

The slot machine is certainly a pernicious contrivance as could well be conjured up, and while their abolition may be looked upon with disfavor by the people that own them, it will certainly be a good thing for those that are in the habit of playing them.

An Ungrateful Bum.

George Miller was brought before Justice Cooper on Friday on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, to which charge he pleaded guilty. After the justice had made the fine $2 and costs, amounting in all to $5.91, Miller made the statement that he was a railroad engineer and that if the justice would allow him to telephone to Tomah he could easily get the money and, paying his fine, get back to work.

The justice did not seem to think the man looked much like a railroad man, but feeling that he should give the man all the show there was he advised Officer Gibson to take the man up to the long distance telephone office and allow him to telephone to his friends. Mr. Gibson started up the steps with his prisoner, but when he reached the top he asked the man if he had any money with which to telephone his folks and Miller answered that he had not. Mr. Gibson stepped back to the door of the justice's office and asked Mr. Cooper what he would do about the matter and when he turned around again his man had disappeared.

When the officer reached the street again the man was nowhere to be seen, but this did not daunt the officer and he immediately started out to round up his man, which he did near the Green Bay depot. It is probably needless to state that the man has since been serving out a five days sentence in the county jail.

A Brilliant Comedy.

The congressional campaign in "The Pumpkin Husker" admits of some of the cleverest natural comedy the American stage has been graced with in many moons. Spontaneous, natural, keen is the wit of the rustic's tongue and Lawrence Russell has penned it with a master hand that enhances its reproduction. The criticism and banter of the opposing factions, the bitterness of their leaders and the culmination in a riot, are incidents that have formed page after page of American history. At the Grand Opera House, Monday, Aug. 31.

Hurt in a Runaway.

Bert McDonnell and his cousin, Mrs. Harper of Milwaukee were out riding on Thursday evening and when near the electric light plant the horse took fright and running into a pile of planks the two occupants of the buggy were thrown out.

Both of them were bruised considerably but they escaped without serious injury. The buggy was broken up some but the horse came out of it without a scratch.

TO AID CONSUMPTIVES.

Field Secretary of the Wisconsin Health Park Association Here.

Dr. W. P. Roberts, field secretary of the Wisconsin Health Park Association, arrived in the city on Tuesday and has been interviewing our business men with a view to getting them interested in the matter and securing donations toward the furtherance of the project of the association.

The object of the Wisconsin Health Park association is to establish and maintain a health park in Northern Wisconsin where invalids, especially those affected with incipient cases of tuberculosis, may be sent for improvement and recovery.

The association was incorporated in March, 1902, and immediately afterward, steps were taken toward securing a site for the park, which resulted in the donation of 240 acres of land near Tomahawk by the late W. H. Bradley.

Some work has been done on this land and a number of acres cleared up, the object of the donations now sought being to erect the first cottage on the tract so that the practical work of the society can be begun in earnest.

The treatment of consumption by the open air method is not a new one, there having been many cases cured in the past by this method where drugs had failed. Those who have interested themselves in the matter have generally become enthusiasts on the subject, and the field in which they work is certainly a large one with an abundance of material. Statistics show that there are over 1200 deaths in Wisconsin alone each year from tuberculosis, while other states where a larger proportion of the inhabitants are employed in sedentary pursuits, the rate is much longer.

On the health farm of the association it is the intention to have light outdoor employment for the invalids, thus not only giving them the necessary exercise so necessary for their recovery, but also allowing them to assist in the support of the institution. Dr. Roberts, who is in the city, is a most enthusiastic worker, and there is no reason why he should not be successful in his search for aid.

For Higher License.

Several petitions have been circulated in the city during the past week which ask the city clerk to call a special election on September 15th for the purpose of voting on the question of raising the license for selling intoxicating liquors.

From the number that have signed the petitions it is evident that the subject is one in which the people are interested, and altho but a few names are necessary in order to have the election held, the petitions have been circulated quite freely in order to find the sentiment of the public.

Since business has picked up some about town several saloons have opened, and there seems to be quite a tendency to put a drinking place in every odd corner about town that can be secured for the purpose. This is not considered a good thing and it is the opinion of many that if the license were raised to $500 many of the small, ill-favored places would go, which is undoubtedly a fact. There are certainly enough saloons in the city at the present time to supply the needs of the people, and to spare, and no more should be started.

Less than three months ago the city council passed a resolution almost unanimously to not grant any more saloon licenses, and with the exception of one man, every member of the council seemed to think it was a good thing. In spite of this fact, there was an application for license in at the next meeting of the council and it was granted without a dissenting vote. Some of the councilmen looked a trifle sheepish at the time and glanced around to see how much of an audience there was, but this was all.

Now, however, the public in general will have a chance to vote on the matter, and every man should turn out and express his sentiments with a ballot, no matter whether he be for or against the measure, as the majority should rule.

In Memoriam.

Whereas, Mrs. James Canning, Founder and first president in the year 1889 of the first ward Ladies aid society of the Congregational church of Grand Rapids, Wisconsin.

Whereas, By the sad visitation in our circle, we have lost a sincere, earnest christian, a most genial companion, and a loving, true friend. We feel the loss deeply, but recognized a law of the Supreme Ruler of the universe, and submissively bow to the Lord's will; Therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of our beloved sister, our society mourns her as one who wrought well, that our church and community have lost a true and earnest worker, and that it is a just and loving tribute to the memory of our departed one, to say, that in regretting her sad and untimely loss and departure from our membership, we mourn for one who was in every way worthy of our affection and love.

Resolved, That we extend to the bereaved husband, children and relatives, our heartfelt sympathy and condolence, and share with them the hope of a reunion in that better land, where there are no more partings.

Resolved, That we tender to our other ward societies, and friends of our late sister, our thanks for their assistance in burying our dead.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the husband and children, and that a copy be spread upon our records, and a copy be furnished all of our press, for publication.

The Ladies aid society of the first ward First Congregational Church.

—Instructions in Shorthand and typewriting, Jessie Love.

A YOUTHFUL THIEF.

Willie Semroe Gets Into Trouble by Stealing Five Dollars From Voss' Drug Store.

On Saturday afternoon a five dollar bill was missed from the Wood County Drug store and as Willie Semroe had been in the store but a few minutes before and in the neighborhood of where the money lay, it was surmised that he had got away with the money.

When he was found by Officer Garhee he admitted his guilt and also admitted that he had stolen some fishing tackle from the same place and some tobacco from the store of Spafford Cole & Co. some time previously. The boy's parents were consulted and for a time it was a question what should be done with the young fellow, he being but thirteen years old. He seemed to be very penitent when faced with his guilt, and not only confessed his other wrongs but told of depredations that had been committed by companions.

Upon his promise to withstand temptation hereafter, he was allowed to go, tho with a stern warning to do nothing of the kind in the future. It is certainly a conundrum what to do with a boy when he goes wrong at so early an age. If there is a chance of reform he should be given it as there is no doubt but what a jail or reform school is no place for a young person whose character is in the process of formation, and might often result in the making of a confirmed criminal out of one who might otherwise become a useful member of society if given the proper chance.

If the youth of the land paid more attention to the learning of a trade and thus mapped out a way of earning an honest living instead of being continually on the outlook of getting thru the world without work it would be better for them and society at large. The average young fellow of today seems to consider work beneath his notice and must either enter one of the professions where he imagines he will have a life of ease, or else live off the public at large, working some "graft" which is often as bad from a moral standpoint as actual stealing.

Labor Day.

Gov. La Follette issued a proclamation designating Monday, Sept. 7, as Labor day and recommended its observance by the closing of shops and co-operation of employers and employees in its recognition and observance. The proclamation is as follows: By authority of law I, Robert M. La Follette, governor of the state of Wisconsin, hereby designate Monday Sept. 7, next as Labor day.

With the purpose of promoting the general welfare by the encouragement of friendly relations between all classes of citizens, and of impressing upon all the great importance and the consideration due labor, it is recommended that all establishments of industry within the state be closed upon that day, and that in every way possible employers co-operate with employees in worthy and becoming observation of labor's holiday.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state to be affixed. Done at the capitol, in the city Madison, this 18th day of August, A. D. 1903.—Robert M. La Follette.

By the governor, W. L. Houser, Secretary of State.

Stevens Point Has a Rival.

The following, clipped from a Chicago paper, will be of interest at this time:

Evanson has a chance to change its name to Philanthropy, but it is probable that the University city will not grasp at the golden opportunity. A letter was received this week from Philanthropy, Texas, in which this strange proposal is made. The note was to the editor of a local paper, and read:

Dear Sir:—Do you think the people of Evanson could be induced to change the name of the place from Evanson to Philanthropy? If they will do this we will buy a site and locate there the International Political Specialist's School and the World's Diathetic Institute, the two proposed world-philanthropic institutions. The letter was signed by A. G. Lee—Stevens Point Journal.

It looks very much as if Mr. Lee was a trifle and it would not be a surprise to discover that his million dollar schemes were the outcome of a diseased imagination.

CORDELL BOUND OVER.

Long Haired Picture Man Will Have to Stand Trial.

Hubert J. Cordell, who is charged with larceny from the person, had a hearing before Justice Cooper on Sunday, and the evidence and the arguments of the attorneys occupied nearly the entire day. After the justice had heard all that could be gleaned from the witnesses he decided that it was a case for the circuit court and bound him over.

One of the principal witnesses against Cordell was Wilkinson, who had already pleaded guilty to the charge. He swore on the witness stand that he and Cordell had met before coming together in Lut saloon where a watch belonging Matt Farrell was stolen. It was established beyond question that two men had drank several glasses beer in company with Mr. Farrell at that immediately after their departure the watch was missed. Wilkins was found attempting to pawn watch in Scott's jewelry store, where Cordell was in the neighborhood of side, and when Wilkinson was arrested he made the statement that Cordell had stolen the watch and had traded watches with him that he might tempt to raise some money on a timepiece.

All of this was denied by Cordell. About the only two points that the men agreed on being that they had never met until they came together in the saloon. Wilkins has had somewhat of a checkered career himself according to his story, and had come to this city of the night before the stealing, from Brook, where he had been working a few weeks at his trade of boot making.

A Powerful Company.

Among the members of the cast engaged to produce Lawrence Russell's latest play "The Pumpkin Husker" numbered some of the best known theatrical performers of America. Horace Newman, the understudy is later the successor to Sol Smith Russell, plays the title role, "Daniel"; Emma Marie Davis, formerly with William Gillette and other Frohman attractions, is the "Al Thatcher"; L. S. DeKalb, another Frohman actor, is the "Howard Williams"; Annie Luman, last seen with Arizona, is "Sarah Thatcher"; George Morrison, Marie Preston and other representative performers go make up one of the best balanced casts that have been seen in a production in many a day. At Grand Opera House, Monday, Aug. 31. Seats on sale Saturday.

New Law Firm.

Attorney Cochran has about completed the arrangements to take partner in with him in the law business here. The man is Frank Ba of Wausau, an attorney of considerable experience and ability. Mr. Ba is a married man and will move in with his family as soon as the matter is definitely settled. Mr. and Mrs. Bump are expected in the city on Friday, when the matter will probably be closed up.

Was in a Wreck.

Among those in the passenger wreck that occurred on the North-West road Monday morning near Fond Lac was Charles L. Norton of Oconto. Mr. Norton is well known here, having been employed in the Johnson & F drug store for some time. Charles was not seriously hurt, his injury being to his back. He was in his home to Oconto after taking the physicians examination.

Fair Dates Changed.

The dates of the Marshfield fair have been advanced one day on account of the unfavorable weather. Large crowd was in attendance Tuesday, the grand stand being unable to hold all that looked for. About one hundred people were on the excursion train that went up in the morning, between eighty and ninety tickets being sold here.

Sorted With the Company.

Frank Laughlin, who was injured on the St. Paul crossing last fall, effected a settlement with the company, taking $150 for the damages sustained in the mishap. An attorney is being made by the company to come to some sort of an agreement with the others that were hurt at the same time.

Congregation Services.

Rev. Shaw and family will return this week from Hartland where he been spending the past month on annual vacation.

He will hold the usual service at church in this city next Sunday morning. The subject will be, "The Importance of Congregational Worship."

Died.

Julia, the wife of Emil Yonaghi, died on Wednesday last of consumption, after an illness of about 10 months. Deceased was twenty years of age and leaves a husband and two children. The funeral held on Friday.

Change in Tailor Shop.

Wages and Cost of Living

The Employer's association has been investigating the cost of living, and announces that it has found that it has increased 15 per cent. in the past five years. There may be disagreement with its figures, but few will dispute its finding that the cost of living has increased.

It is announced that the members of the association will raise the wages of their employes to meet the increased cost of living. It is a somewhat belated concession, but better late than never. The action of the Chicago Employer's association, however, serves to emphasize the fact that labor has not profited from the "unprecedented era of prosperity" to the extent that the "full dinner pail" politicians have sought to make the public believe.

Though great fortunes have been accumulated as never before in the world's history, the workers are little better off than they were before "prosperity" set in. Whenever workingmen have gone on a strike to secure a raise in wages to enable them to maintain their standard of living. It has been disclosed that they are living from hand to mouth. A few weeks' idleness brings them to the verge of starvation. The only real benefit that the workman has received from the period of "prosperity" that followed on the heels of industrial revival has been that of steady employment. The wages he has received for his work have not secured to him more of the necessities of life than he was able to purchase with the wages he secured for the same work before the advent of "prosperity." He has created a great deal more wealth than he produced in times of industrial stagnation, but the surplus product has slipped through his hands.—Milwaukee News.

Evil in Squashville.

The power behind the Squashville Banner remarks editorially: "There are several growing evils in Squashville, to which we must allude briefly. Ever since we have had charge of this paper, we have set our foot down on everything that seemed demoralizing, and we do not propose to swerve an iota from our path.

"With have noticed a number of young ladies living in this village, going to business college and studying shorthand and typewriting. When we were a young man, girls were not permitted to act as stenographers or bookkeepers, but were kept in their proper places, i. e. the home. Lady stenographers are a menace to the community. For instance, Squire Featherhead, our genial justice of the peace, at one time employed Lem Bracewell as his secretary at a salary of $2 a week. Then along came Emily, the daughter of Postmaster Featherhead, and took the position at $2 a week, and Lem crowded out of his profession by cheap labor is now making ties over in Tucker's swamp. Bart Ensilage, for many years a stenographer at the Farmers' Alliance store, where he drew $30 a month, has been fired to make room for Miss Julia Jimpson, who gladly accepted the position at $10 a month. Whither are we drifting?

"Another great evil that is threatening our fair village with disaster is the deadly pool table. We understand that Nate Crosscut did not go to church last Sunday night because he had played a game of pool in the afternoon and squandered the dime he had been saving for the contribution box. Several of our estimable young men have been suspected of playing this demoralizing and soul destroying game, though we have nothing but circumstantial evidence to convince us.

Other forms of depravity might be mentioned, but these will serve to show that Squashville, far from being the peaceful, prosperous, Christian community that it may seem, is rapidly degenerating. Something will have to be did and that very soon!"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Very Old, But Very Good.

And Yawcob, observing his dog Schnitzel, spake unto him as follows: "You was only a tog, but I wish I was you. Ven you go mit your bed in you shust durn round dre dimes and lay down. Ven I go mit the bed in, I haf to lock up der place und vind der der clock und put der cat out und myself und my vrow wakes up und scolds, den der baby cries up und cries und I haf to walk him mit der house around; den maybe ven I gets myself to bed it is time to get up vonce more again. Ven you gets up mit your bed you shust stretch yourself, dig your neck a leedle und you was up. I haf to light der fire, put on der kittle, scrap some mit my wife alretty und get myself breakfast. You play mit der day all around und haf plenties of fun. I haf to work all der day round und haf plenties of drubbie. Ven you die you was dead. Ven I die I haf to go to hell yet."

The Cayman Islands, lying near Jamaica, were swept by a hurricane August 11th and it is reported that all of the growing crops have been destroyed. These islands belong to Great Britain and have a population of about 4,500. Life must indeed be a strenuous existence in these outlying islands, as hardly a week passes without a report of some terrible disaster that has fallen upon them.

And now some of the republicans says it will be "Uncle Ike" Stephenson who will be the next candidate for governor on the republican ticket. Ike's wad cuts quite a swath in politics when he once gets started as has been demonstrated in years gone by.

To live happily in this world it is not enough to know how to work. A man must also know how to rest. To live happily in this world it is not enough to know how to work.

A man who can't drop his work from his mind as readily as he can drop his tools from his hands had better take a few weeks off to study the rest question. His nerves are not what they should be.

Ivy Clad Buildings.

So long as the walls of a building are sound and the bricks or stones, well cemented together, offer no fissures or cracks for the plant to force its way into, there is nothing whatever to fear. Should the ivy, however, find an opening, and so thrust itself into the wall, the natural and continuous expansion of its parts will tend to loosen the stones and hasten the decay of the building.

A fair growth of ivy on sound walls that allow of no advances beyond the superficial attachment of the claspers, or aerial roots, as they are called, is altogether beneficial. It promotes dryness and warmth, counteracts the corrosive action of the atmosphere and is at once a shelter and an ornament.

These aerial roots are not sources of nutrition, but merely serve as mechanical support to the climbing ivy. The contention that they sap the whole of the moisture from mortar, leaving it excessively dry and crumbling, has therefore no foundation in fact.—London Standard.

A Disguised Toast.

At one time the officers under Lord Howe refused to drink his health at their mess, for, though a splendid admiral, he was not popular in the navy on account of a certain shyness and want of tact with those about him. The chaplain, who was a protégé of his lordship, was mortified at this and determined that the officers should drink to Lord Howe. When called upon for a toast one day he said, "Well, gentlemen, I can think of nothing better at this moment than to ask you to drink the first two words of the Third Psalm, for a Scriptural toast for once may be taken from one of my cloth." The toast was drunk. Not one of the officers indicated by word or look that he was ignorant of the words alluded to. On referring to the Bible it was found that the Third Psalm begins, "Lord, how are they increased!"

Coveredly Brave Men.

It is related of a Missouri engineer that he does not hesitate to drive his machine at full speed through the blindest storm at night with washouts all around him, but that he is afraid to go home alone in the dark. If some one is not at the roundhouse to go with him he sits there till daylight. It is the old story of every man having his own peculiar fear. There is a doctor we know who will cut a man to pieces and smile the while. He is an old soldier and often faces the cannon's mouth. But he will betray the most abject terror if one of the harmless little elm tree worms happens to drop on his nose.—Kansas City Journal.

Doctor's Recipe For Lemonade.

Here is a scientific recipe for lemonade advocated by the medical profession: Wash the lemons thoroughly; slice thin and peel all. Cover with sugar, allowing the sugar to become saturated with the lemon juice by gently pressing the slices of lemon with a spoon. Then add water, slowly stirring all the while. Ice, if used, should be used sparingly. One-third of a lemon to a glass is about right for home use.

A Good Suggestion.

"When I write a story," said the struggling young author, "I make out a list of ten magazines that I think might like it, and I usually go right close to the end of the list before I sell it."

"In that case," returned the wise business man, "I should think it would pay you to begin at the other end of your list."—Chicago Post.

MRS. CECELIA STOWE, Orator, Entre Nous Club.

176 Warren Avenue, Chicago, Ill., Oct. 22, 1902. For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation. My husband felt disheartened as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disconsolate place at best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine of Cardui for me to try, and he did so. I began to improve in a few days and my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

Cecelia Stowe

Mrs. Stowe's letter shows every woman how a home is saddened by female weakness and how completely Wine of Cardui cures that sickness and brings health and happiness again. Do not go on suffering. Go to your druggist today and secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui.

BRIEF CITY ITEMS

Judgment for the Plaintiff.—The case of Albert Cummings against A. D. Parker and A. Feich came up for trial again on Monday, and as the defendant was not in court judgment was rendered for the plaintiff. The action was for the recovery of a team that the plaintiff's husband had sold to Parker without her knowledge. The plaintiff was awarded the sum of $14 from Parker for the use of one of the horses and the costs in the suit amounted to $3.45, and she got the horse back. From Feich she gets $14 for the use of the other horse and the costs are $3.85, making $28.84. The whole amount boots up to $79.32, and as the team is said to be worth only about $50, it will prove rather an expensive trade. The case was tried first on 13th inst. and the jury disagreed.

An Eventful Trip.—George Taylor shipped four carloads of sheep to Chicago on Sunday over the North-Western, loading them at Kellner. When near Kenilworth, this side of Chicago, the train ran into several box cars that had been left standing on the track while some switching was being done, and the result was that the cars were demolished and the fireman and engineer of the freight train were quite badly bruised up. The accident was caused by a heavy fog that hung over the land after the rain of that night. The stock train on which Mr. Taylor was traveling was delayed about six hours and the result was that he is out something like a thousand dollars by the deal as the sheep could not be fed and were in much worse shape than they would have been had the train arrived on time.

A Willing Correction.—Last week in the writup of the Cranberry meeting the Tribune man states that the dinner had been served under the management of Mrs. Ed. Kruger, when it should have been Mrs. E. E. Warner. Now a man who will attend an affair of this sort, and after filling himself and his family up with chicken pie, boiled ham, baked beans, blackberry pie and several kinds of fruit, and then go home and misrepresent the facts in the case, is no better than he ought to be, and should be treated accordingly. However, it is probable that no harm was done and it is with pleasure that the correction is made.

New Stores for West Side.—Pavlick & Rick have commenced the erection of a building west of the St. Paul track which will be used by them for a meat market. The structure will be of brick and two stories high with a basement underneath. The dimensions are 14x42, and it is the intention of the proprietors to have it finished in time for occupancy this fall. G. A. Corriveau has also started the erection of a brick store building on the corner opposite his house. This will be 50x50 feet and also of brick.

New Cement Walks.—The east side gives promise of presenting a much improved appearance in the near future, the cause of the change being the laying of cement walks along the west side of Front street in front of all the principal business places. The new walks will not only make a great improvement in the appearance of the street but it is a change that will be permanent. M. Peterson has the contract for laying the walks.

Rudolph Mon Fined.—Peter Keyzer of Rudolph was brought to this city on Thursday and taken before Justice Cooper on a charge of keeping his saloon open on Sunday. Mr. Keyzer pleaded guilty to the charge and paid a fine and costs amounting to $29.00. It was quite a surprise to Mr. Keyzer to be arrested on this charge as no attention has been paid to these matters at Rudolph heretofore.

Laying the Floors.—During the past week a party of workmen have been busily engaged in laying the tile floors in the Hotel Dixon, and the process has been quite an interesting one to spectators. Where the floors have been finished they present a very handsome appearance and there is every evidence that the hotel will well appointed thruout when completed.

A Successful Social.—The members of the Maccabee lodge gave a social on the lawn of D. D. Conway last Saturday evening, at which there was a good attendance. The members netted the sum of $17 by their efforts.

Half rates to the centennial celebration at Chicago and return, via the North-Western Line. Excursion tickets will be sold at one fare for round trip September 28, 29 and 30, limited to return until October 2, inclusive. For further particulars apply to agents Chicago & North-Western R'y.

Home visitor's excursion tickets to Indiana and Ohio, via the North-Western Line, will be sold at reduced rates on four Tuesdays, Sept. 1, 8, 15 and Oct. 6, limited to return within 30 days from the date of sale. For particulars as to territory to which excursion tickets may be sold, etc., apply to Agents Chicago & North-Western R'y.

The Chattanooga Advertising. The Chattanooga Medicine Company, with laboratories and general offices at Chattanooga, Tennessee, and branch houses at New York, San Francisco, Cal., has become one of the largest proprietary medicine concerns in the world. In the growth of this great business two factors have been dominant. The merit of its products—Wine of Cardui and Theodor's Back-Draught—has been widely recognized and the original advertising methods adopted have excited great comment. The publicity for these medicines does not consist of the catch phrases and extravagant statements, too often employed in advertising today, but instead the plain story of experience with the medicines given in the plain language of the people themselves. The following letter is a fair sample of the thousands of Wine of Cardui testimonials published during the past two years.

WAS EASTERN AVOID. CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 1, 1902. I consider Wine of Cardui a most excellent woman's remedy. It is certainly a specific as a tonic and regulator. For eight years I suffered with female trouble. I had intense pain in the back and head, leaving me as weak that I was unable to stand at times. Medicine did not seem to help me, but after all remedies had failed me Wine of Cardui proved my one great true friend. What a relief I experienced! It came only a few days after I started taking it. I used it faithfully for four months and gradually grew stronger and better. I am now regular to the day and for the past two years have enjoyed blessed good health. I certainly wish every sick and suffering woman could know of your blessed medicine, how much pain and suffering it would prevent, and what a difference it would make in thousands of homes where there is sickness and sorrow today, if they had Wine of Cardui it would bring relief and joy instead.

THE BOWSER PAINTER

For the other morning at the window of the old house, I saw that the painter was at work. He was a man of about 40 years of age, with a high forehead and a pair of eyes that looked as if they had seen a great deal of the world. He was dressed in a simple, clean, and well-kept suit, and he carried a paintbrush in his hand. He was looking at the house with a critical eye, and he was talking to himself about the work he had to do.

"When I went out this morning I noticed that the front steps needed painting, and before it was a pleasant day I thought I'd come home and do the job."

"I was going to speak about it in a day or two and ask you to get a painter," she replied.

"There is no call for a painter. I can do this much paint and this brush for a dollar and a half, and that will be all the cost. A painter would have

"I CAN DO THE WORK IN TWO HOURS," he chuckled at last. "I can do the work in two hours, and he would have dawdled around for three days."

"But you set out to varnish the front door two years ago and"

"And I varnished it. A jealous mind-painter told me to mix in castor oil, and the door didn't dry for a month, but that was not my fault."

"And last year you painted the front fence and"

"And I made a good job of it too. Everybody brushed against it and I had three or four lights, but it's the best looking fence on the street today. It's no use your trying to discourage me. I can save $5 and have a little play spell at the same time, and I'm going to do it. I'll show you a set of steps up which a king would be proud to walk."

FOUR TRAMPS WERE SITTING ON THE FRESHLY PAINTED STEPS.

That settled it. Half an hour later he had got into an old suit of clothes and was ready for business. His first move was to paint a sign of "Paint" and stick it up on the gate, and he had hardly begun on the steps when a man came along and halted to say:

"I do not exactly understand. I see no paint on this gate. Is it that you intend to paint it later on?"

"Don't you see paint on these steps?" asked Mr. Bowser as he rose up.

"I do, but the steps are not the gate. I am naturally of a confident, trusting disposition, sir, but this is going too far. Too far. If you really intend to paint the gate I have nothing to say, but if your object is to deceive people, then, sir, then let me say that you are an old rascal and pass on."

Mr. Bowser got down to the gate as fast as he could, but the kicker had too much the start of him. He took down the sign, however, and nailed it up on the steps, and after brushing away for fifteen minutes he entered the basement for a drink of water. He came out to find a knife grinder about to write the front door bell, and after one look he yelled:

"Get out of this, you infernal idiot! Didn't you see the sign and the paint?" "You gotta no shears to sharpen, eh?" queried the man as he made new tracks in the fresh paint.

Mr. Bowser grabbed for him, but he twisted and dodged and made a bolt for the gate.

The work then went on for half an hour without interruption, and it was a man and a dog who broke in upon the harmony. The Bowser cat had been out for some time. As the door opened, the cat came in, and he saw the painter. He was a large, black cat, with a white patch on his chest, and he was looking at the painter with a critical eye. He was dressed in a simple, clean, and well-kept suit, and he carried a paintbrush in his hand. He was looking at the house with a critical eye, and he was talking to himself about the work he had to do.

"That look at the front door," he said, "and look at my door. I'll take two hours to varnish the paint on it."

If a policeman hadn't come scuttling along there would have been a struggle, but he kicked the door, and ordered the owner to move on, and Mr. Bowser put in the next half hour picking hairs out of the paint and smoothing down the tracks.

Then he went around the corner to the paint store to get a pinch of putty, and on his way back he saw a man open the gate and walk up the steps and ring the bell.

That man was marked for destruction. He had rung for the second time, when he heard a great clatter and a hoarse breathing behind him, but before he could turn around he was yanked backward down the steps and mopped over the grass. He was a man who was canvassing the street in the interest of a home for old cats and had been told that Mrs. Bowser wouldn't give less than $10, but he didn't stop for the subscription. He wriggled loose while Mr. Bowser was trying to get a better hold, and he didn't stop to say goodbye as he fled.

"Durn my side if I don't dabble my hands in human gore," gasped Mr. Bowser as Mrs. Bowser came to the door to ask him not to kill any one. "I'm going to paint these steps if we have earthquakes, cyclones and earthquakes by the dozen, and the next thing on legs that walks up 'em has got to die!"

It was dinner time before the work was done. Then a board was nailed across the sign "Paint" was hoisted into a conspicuous place, and Mr. Bowser retired from the field with a feeling of complacency. He changed his clothes, ate his dinner and sauntered out for an evening view of his work. What he saw struck him dead in his tracks. The board had been removed and four tramps were sitting on the freshly painted steps in attitudes of dejection. As he appeared one of them arose and said: "Please, kind sir, could you assist four worthy but unfortunate men who are on their way west to grow up with the country?"

Mr. Bowser couldn't. He turned up against the house, and his cigar went out and the night came down, and when Mrs. Bowser and the cook finally coaxed him inside he glared around him and his lips moved without uttering words, and it was plain that some awful shock had upset his mental system.

CALUMET Baking Powder

Food prepared with Calumet Baking Powder is pure and healthful, and is free from Rochelle salts, alum, lime and ammonia. A wonderful powder of unequalled strength.

Trust Baking Powders sell for 45 or 50 cents per pound and may be identified by this exorbitant price. They are a menace to public health, as food prepared from them contains large quantities of Rochelle salts, a dangerous cathartic drug.

UNION MADE CLOTHING

We sell Union made Clothing and the UNION LABEL

On our garments tells its own story.

It means the very best of workmanship, and it's a mark of superiority.

This store is a Union Store, through and through and sells only Union Made merchandise as far as it is possible to obtain it.

Now, Mr. Union Workingman

we believe we are entitled to your patronage. When you buy here you are helping the hand that's helping you. Our clothing is clean and wholesome. There's not a sweat shop garment in our store and our prices are always right.

Our tailoring department gives you clothes after your own ideas, you select your fabrics and you dictate. You tell us how you want this and how you want that. The clothes get your individuality into them, with our style, fit and good work.

If a suit isn't right, who is hurt most—you or your tailor? You're out your time; we're out both money and time, and get a black eye among your friends. So it pays us to get the best stuffs and the best tailors.

They're Here at Your Service

The new Fall and Winter Woolens are ready. $25.00 to $65.00 Suits or Overcoats, new shades, new weaves, new styles of making.

Let us have your measure. It will cost you nothing unless you say everything is exactly right and satisfactory.

Our aim is to "please" if we don't, "let us know."

SLOT MACHINES WILL SOON GO.

THIS IS ACCORDING TO ORDER OF THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

Saloon Keepers Given Until the 27th Instant to Abolish all Gambling Devices.—It is Probable That all Will Comply With the law Without Opposition.

During the past week a notice was served upon all the saloon keepers of the city by the district attorney ordering them to take the slot machines out of their places of business, giving them until the 27th instant to accomplish same. Following is the notice served by the district attorney:

"To all Keepers, Managers, Users, etc. of Gambling Devices, Schemes and Contrivances, including Slot Machines, and to all persons permitting the same to be set up, kept, used or managed on their premises:

Complaints have been filed with me for the prosecution of all persons in anyway interested in slot machines and other gambling devices in the city of Grand Rapids, supported by abundant evidence of the violation of the law in this respect.

As District Attorney it is my duty, on complaint being made, to prosecute all such violations of the law, but I have thought it proper and fairest to all concerned first to give this notice. You will note by reading Sections 4529, 4531, 4539 and 4540 and other provisions of the Statute, that the penalty involves imprisonment, heavy fine and the destruction of such slot machines and other gambling devices.

Notice is therefore hereby given that in case any such slot machines or gambling devices is found in this city on or after the 27th day of August, 1903, all persons responsible therefor will be prosecuted and such slot machines and other gambling devices destroyed.

During a talk with Mr. Brazee on the subject on Tuesday that gentleman stated that it would have been perfectly proper for him to go right ahead and prosecute any persons that were complained of for having gambling devices in their places of business, but that he considered no more than fair that a notice be given before any action was taken, as the slot machines have heretofore been allowed to exist without any objection.

An interview with some of the men who have machines in their saloons discloses the fact that many of them seem to care very little about the matter and are perfectly willing to take the machines out providing their competitors are compelled to do the same. Many of them seem to be glad of the change.

The slot machine is certainly as pernicious a contrivance as could well be conjured up, and while their abolishment may be looked upon with disfavor by the people that own them, it will certainly be a good thing for those that are in the habit of playing them.

An Ungrateful Bum.

George Miller was brought before Justice Cooper on Friday on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, to which charge he pleaded guilty. After the justice had made the fine $2 and costs, amounting in all to $5.91, Miller made the statement that he was a railroad engineer and that if the justice would allow him to telephone to Tomahawk he could easily get the money and, paying his fine, get back to work.

The justice did not seem to think the man looked much like a railroad man, but feeling that he should give the man all the show there was he advised Officer Gibson to take the man up to the long distance telephone office and allow him to telephone to his friends. Mr. Gibson started up the steps with his prisoner, but when he reached the top he asked the man if he had any money with which to telephone his folks and Miller answered that he had not. Mr. Gibson stepped back to the door of the justice's office and asked Mr. Cooper what he would do about the matter and when he turned around again his man had disappeared.

When the officer reached the street again the man was nowhere to be seen, but this did not daunt the officer and he immediately started out to round up his man, which he did near the Green Bay depot. It is probably needless to state that the man has since been serving out a five days sentence in the county jail.

A Brilliant Comedy.

The congressional campaign in "The Punkin Husker" admits of some of the cleverest natural comedy the American stage has been graced with in many moons. Spontaneous, natural, keen is the wit of the rustic's tongue and Lawrence Russell has penned it with a master hand that enhances its reproduction. The criticism and banter of the opposing factions, the bitterness of their leaders and the culmination in a riot, are incidents that have formed page after page of American history. At the Grand Opera House, Monday, Aug. 31.

Hurt in a Runaway.

Bert McDonald and his cousin, Mrs. Harper of Milwaukee were out riding on Thursday evening and when near the electric light plant the horse took fright and running into a pile of planks the two occupants of the buggy were thrown out.

Both of them were bruised considerably but they escaped without serious injury. The buggy was broken up on some but the horse came out of it without a scratch.

TO AID CONSUMPTIVES.

Field Secretary of the Wisconsin Health Park Association Here.

Dr. W. P. Roberts, field secretary of the Wisconsin Health Park Association, arrived in the city on Tuesday and has been interviewing our business men with a view to getting them interested in the matter and securing donations toward the furtherance of the project of the association.

The object of the Wisconsin Health Park association is to establish and maintain a health park in Northern Wisconsin where invalids, especially those affected with incipient cases of tuberculosis, may be sent for improvement and recovery.

The association was incorporated in March, 1902, and immediately afterward, steps were taken toward securing a site for the park, which resulted in the donation of 240 acres of land near Tomahawk by the late W. H. Bradley.

Some work has been done on this land and a number of acres cleared up, the object of the donations now sought being to erect the first cottage on the tract so that the practical work of the society can be begun in earnest.

The treatment of consumption by the open air method is not a new one, there having been many cases cured in the past by this method where drugs had failed. Those who have interested themselves in the matter have generally become enthusiasts on the subject, and the field in which they work is certainly a large one with an abundance of material. Statistics show that there are over 1200 deaths in Wisconsin alone each year from tuberculosis, while other states where a larger proportion of the inhabitants are employed in sedentary pursuits, the rate is much longer.

On the health farm of the association it is the intention to have light outdoor employment for the invalids, thus not only giving them the necessary exercise so necessary for their recovery, but also allowing them to assist in the support of the institution. Dr. Roberts, who is in the city, is a most enthusiastic worker, and there is no reason why he should not be successful in his search for aid.

For Higher License.

Several petitions have been circulated in the city during the past week which ask the city clerk to call a special election on September 15th for the purpose of voting on the question of raising the license for selling intoxicating liquors.

From the number that have signed the petitions it is evident that the subject is one in which the people are interested, and altho but a few names are necessary in order to have the election held, the petitions have been circulated quite freely in order to find the sentiment of the public.

Since business has picked up some about town several saloons have opened, and there seems to be quite a tendency to put a drinking place in every odd corner about town that can be secured for the purpose. This is not considered a good thing and it is the opinion of many that if the license were raised to $500 many of the small, ill-favored places would go, which is undoubtedly a fact. There are certainly enough saloons in the city at the present time to supply the needs of the people, and to spare, and no more should be started.

Less than three months ago the city council passed a resolution almost unanimously to not grant any more saloon licenses, and with the exception of one man, every member of the council seemed to think it was a good thing. In spite of this fact, there was an application for license in at the next meeting of the council and it was granted without a dissenting vote. Some of the councilmen looked a trifle sheepish at the time and glanced around to see how much of an audience there was, but this was all.

Now, however, the public in general will have a chance to vote on the matter, and every man should turn out and express his sentiments with a ballot, no matter whether he be for or against the measure, as the majority should rule.

In Memoriam

Whereas, Mrs. James Canby, Founder and first president in the year 1888 of the first and Ladies Aid society of the Congregational church of Grand Rapids, Wisconsin.

Whereas, By the sad visitation in our circle, we have lost a sincere, earnest christian, a most genial companion, and a loving, true friend. We feel the loss deeply, but recognized a law of the Supreme Ruler of the universe, and submissively bow to the Lord's will. Therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of our beloved sister, our society mourns her as one who wrought well, that our church and community have lost a true and earnest worker, and that it is a just and loving tribute to the memory of our departed one, to say, that in regretting her sad and untimely loss and departure from our membership, we mourn for one who was in every way worthy of our affection and love.

Resolved, That we extend to the bereaved husband, children and relatives, our heartfelt sympathy and condolence, and share with them the hope of a reunion in that better land, where there are no more partings.

Resolved, That we tender to our other ward societies, and friends of our late sister, our thanks for their assistance in burying our dead.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the husband and children, and that a copy be spread upon our records, and a copy be furnished all of our press, for publication. The Ladies Aid society of the first ward First Congregational Church.

—Instructions in Shorthand and typewriting, Jessie Love.

A YOUTHFUL THIEF.

Willie Semroe Gets Into Trouble by Stealing Five Dollars From Voss' Drug Store.

On Saturday afternoon a five dollar bill was missed from the Wood County Drug store and as Willie Semroe had been in the store but a few minutes before and in the neighborhood of where the money lay, it was surmised that he had got away with the money.

When he was found by officer Garhee he admitted his guilt and also admitted that he had stolen some fishing tackle from the same place and some tobacco from the store of Spafford Cole & Co. some time previously. The boy's parents were consulted and for a time it was a question what should be done with the young fellow, he being but thirteen years old. He seemed to be very penitent when faced with his guilt, and not only confessed his other wrongs but told of deceptions that had been committed by companions.

Upon his promise to withstand temptation hereafter, he was allowed to go, tho with a stern warning to do nothing of the kind in the future. It is certainly a conundrum what to do with a boy when he goes wrong at so early an age. If there is a chance of reform he should be given it as there is no doubt but what a jail or reform school is no place for a young person whose character is in the process of formation, and might often result in the making of a confirmed criminal out of one who might otherwise become a useful member of society if given the proper chance.

If the youth of the land paid more attention to the learning of a trade and thus mapped out a way of earning an honest living instead of being continually on the outlook of getting thru the world without work it would be better for them and society at large. The average young fellow of today seems to consider work beneath his notice and must either enter one of the professions where he imagines he will have a life of ease, or else live off the public at large, working some "graft" which is often as bad from a moral standpoint as actual stealing.

Labor Day.

Gov. La Follette issued a proclamation designating Monday, Sept. 7, as Labor day and recommended its observance by the closing of shops and co-operation of employers and employees in its recognition and observance. The proclamation is as follows:

By authority of law I, Robert M. La Follette, governor of the state of Wisconsin, hereby designate Monday September 7, next as Labor day. With the purpose of promoting the general welfare by the encouragement of friendly relations between all classes of citizens, and of impressing upon all the great importance and the consideration due labor, it is recommended that all establishments of industry within the state be closed upon that day, and that in every way possible employers co-operate with employees in worthy and becoming observation of labor's holiday.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state to be affixed. Done at the capitol, in the city Madison, this 18th day of August, A. D. 1903.—Robert M. La Follette.

By the governor, W. L. Houser, Secretary of State.

Stevens Point Has a Rival.

The following, clipped from a Chicago paper, will be of interest at this time:

Evanston has a chance to change its name to Philanthropy, but it is probable that the University city will not grasp at the golden opportunity. A letter was received this week from Philanthropy, Texas, in which this strange proposal is made. The note was to the editor of a local paper, and read:

Dear Sir:—Do you think the people of Evanston could be induced to change the name of the place from Evanston to Philanthropy? If they will do this we will buy a site and locate there the International Political Specialist's School and the World's Diathetic Institute, the two proposed world-philanthropic institutions. The letter was signed by A. G. Lee.—Stevens Point Journal.

It looks very much as if Mr. Lee was a trifle and it would not be a surprise to discover that his million dollar schemes were the outcome of a diseased imagination.

A Letter From Hans Hanson.

CORDELL BOUND OVER.

Long Haired Picture Man Will Have to Stand Trial.

Hubert J. Cordell, who is charged with larceny from the person, had a hearing before Justice Cooper on Sunday, and the evidence and the arguments of the attorneys occupied nearly the entire day. After the justice had heard all that could be gleaned from the witnesses he decided that it was a case for the circuit court and bound him over.

One of the principal witnesses against Cordell was Wilkinson, who had already pleaded guilty to a charge. He swore on the witness stand that he and Cordell had met before coming together in Lut saloon where a watch belonging to Matt Farrell was stolen. It was established beyond question that two men had drank several glasses beer in company with Mr. Farrell at that immediately after their departure the watch was missed. Wilkinson was found attempting to pawn a watch in Scott's jewelry store, where Cordell was in the neighborhood of side, and when Wilkinson was arrested he made the statement that Cordell had stolen the watch and had traded watches with him that he might attempt to raise some money on a timepiece.

All of this was denied by Cordell. About the only two points the men agreed on being that they had never met until they came together in the saloon. Wilkinson has had somewhat of a checkered career himself according to his story, and had come to this city of the night before the stealing, from Brokaw, where he had been working a few weeks at his trade of boot making.

A Powerful Company.

Among the members of the cast engaged to produce Lawrence Russell's latest play "The Punkin Husker" numbered some of the best known theatrical performers of America. Horace Newman, the understudy of later the successor to Sol Smith Russell, plays the title role, "J. Daniels"; Emma Marie Davis, formerly with William Gillette and other Frohman attractions, is the "Al Thatcher"; L. S. DeKalb, and Frohman actor, is the "Howard Williams"; Annie Inman, last seen with Arizona, is "Sarah Thatcher"; George Morrison, Marie Preston, other representative performers go make up one of the best balanced casts that have been seen in a production in many a day. At Grand Opera House, Monday, Aug. 31. Seats on sale Saturday.

New Law Firm.

Attorney Cochran has about completed the arrangements to take partner in with him in the law business here. The man is Frank Bump of Wausau, an attorney of considerable experience and ability. Mr. Bump is a married man and will move with his family as soon as the matter is definitely settled. Mr. and Mrs. Bump are expected in the city on Friday, when the matter will probably be closed up.

Was in a Wreck.

Among those in the passenger wreck that occurred on the North-West road Monday morning near Fond Lac was Charles L. Norton of Oconto. Mr. Norton is well known here, having been employed in the Johnson & Co. drug store for some time. Charles was not seriously hurt, his injury being to his back. He was on his way home to Oconto after taking the pharmacist's examination.

Fair Dates Changed.

The dates of the Marshall field have been advanced one day on account of the unfavorable weather. Large crowd was in attendance Tuesday, the grand stand being unable to hold all that looked for to see about one hundred people were the excursion train that went up the morning, between eighty and ninety tickets being sold here.

Settled With the Company.

Frank Langdon, who was injured on the S. Paul crossing last fall, effected a settlement with the company, taking $250 for the damages sustained in the mishap. An attorney being made by the company came to some sort of an agreement with the others that were hurt at same time.

Congregation Services.

Rev. Shaw and family will return this week from Hartland where he been spending the past month on annual vacation.

He will hold the usual service at church at this city next Sunday morning. The subject will be, "The Importance of Congregational Worship."

Martin Pfyl of Arpin was in the city on Tuesday on business. Mr. Pfyl reported that his section had been visited by a very severe electrical and rain storm the night before, the roads being very muddy and the ditches being filled with water.

Mrs. Louis Laramie was called to LaCrosse on Friday by a telegram announcing that her son Thomas had been killed by an explosion of dynamite. Arriving there she discovered that it was a case of mistaken identity the young fellow that was killed having a similar name.

F. M. Billmyre is engaged in building a house in the second ward, which it is expected to have finished this fall. The structure is to be 24x30 feet and will contain six rooms. It will be used for renting when finished. A. F. Billmyre has the contract for the erecting the building.

J. B. Frye, who represents the Chicago Record's Home Study Circle Library Association, has been in the city the past week securing subscribers for this valuable work. Mr. Frye reports that the prospects in the city are quite good and he expects to spend about a month here interviewing our people.

Annual Meeting Sovereign Grand Lodge Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Baltimore, Md. On Sept. 17, 18 and 19. The C. M. & St. Paul R'y will sell excursion tickets to Baltimore and return for this occasion at $24.75 good to return until Sept. 25. For extension of tickets, etc., call on nearest ticket agent.

Eight little girl friends of Perciel Akey's daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Akey of the east side, will assemble at her home from three until six, on Thursday afternoon to help celebrate the fifth anniversary of her birthday. At six o'clock refreshments will be served and no doubt but the little ones will have a good time.

M. A. Bogoger of Merrill spent the latter part of last week in this city, having come down to attend to some business matters. Mr. Bogoger says that he will probably return here sometime in the future, although he has not made up his mind just yet when it will be. His health has been rather poor since he left here and he expects to spend the winter in California.

Mr. Isaac Witter and another representative of the Grand Rapids Milling Co., of Grand Rapids, were in our city on business Tuesday. We understand the company will have to relinquish the Syverson elevator at the termination of their lease in October and they are making other arrangements.—Tomah Journal.

"We have the coming town," said D. D. Conway, an attorney of Grand Rapids, Wis., at the Plankinton house yesterday. "We have increased our population at least 1,000 in the last two years, and property has almost doubled in value. They expect to have the $1,000,000 paper mill, which is being built by the Grand Rapids Pulp and Paper company, in operation by Jan. 1, 1904."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Miss Lillian E. Retlach and Alfred N. Copps were married at Stevens Point last Wednesday. Both were brought up in that city, where they are popular. Miss Retlach is well known to many of our people, having been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Bogoger and Miss Effie Goggins on many occasions. Mr. Copps is a son of E. M. Copps, the potato and produce buyer who has interest here and at Kellner.

BRIEF CITY ITEMS

Judgment for the Plaintiff.—The cases of Anna Cummings against A. D. Parker and A. Feich came up for trial again on Monday, and as the defendant was not in court judgment was rendered for the plaintiff. The action was for the recovery of a team that the plaintiff's husband had sold to Parker without her knowledge. The plaintiff was awarded the sum of $14 from Parker for the use of one of the horses and the costs in the suit amounted to $34.48, and she got the horse back. From Feich she gets $14 for the use of the other horse and the costs are $9.84, making $23.84. The whole amount foots up to $76.32, and as the team is said to be worth only about $50, it will prove rather an expensive trade. The case was tried first on 13th inst. and the jury disagreed.

An Eventful Trip.—George Taylor shipped four carloads of sheep to Chicago on Sunday over the North-Western, loading them at Kellner. When near Kenilworth, this side of Chicago, the train ran into several box cars that had been left standing on the track while some switching was being done, and the result was that the cars were demolished and the freman and engineer of the freight train were quite badly bruised up. The accident was caused by a heavy fog that hung over the land after the rain of that night. The stock train on which Mr. Taylor was traveling was delayed about six hours and the result was that he is out something like a thousand dollars by the deal as the sheep could not be fed and were in much worse shape than they would have been had the train arrived on time.

A Willing Correction.—Last week in the writup of the Cranberry meeting the Tribune man states that the dinner had been served under the management of Mrs. Ed. Kruger, when it should have been Mrs. E. E. Warner. Now a man who will attend an affair of this sort, and after filling himself and his family up with chicken pie, boiled ham, baked beans, blackberry pie and several kinds of fruit, and then go home and misrepresent the facts in the case, is no better than he ought to be, and should be treated accordingly. However, it is probable that no harm was done and it is with pleasure that the correction is made.

New Stores for West Side.—Pavlick & Rick have commenced the erection of a building west of the St. Paul track which will be used by them for a meat market. The structure will be of brick and two stories high with a basement underneath. The dimensions are 14x42, and it is the intention of the proprietors to have it finished in time for occupancy this fall. G. A. Corriveau has also started the erection of a brick store building on the corner opposite his house. This will be 50x50 feet and also of brick.

New Cement Walks.—The east side gives promise of presenting a much improved appearance in the near future, the cause of the change being the laying of cement walks along the west side of Front street in front of all the principal business places. The new walks will not only make a great improvement in the appearance of the street but it is a change that will be permanent. M. Peterson has the contract for laying the walks.

Rudolph Man Fined.—Peter Keyzer of Rudolph was brought to this city on Thursday and taken before Justice Cooper on a charge of keeping his saloon open on Sunday. Mr. Keyzer pleaded guilty to the charge and paid a fine and costs amounting to $29.00. It was quite a surprise to Mr. Keyzer to be arrested on this charge as no attention has been paid to these matters at Rudolph heretofore.

Laying the Floors.—During the past week a party of workmen have been busily engaged in laying the tile floors in the Hotel Dixon, and the process has been quite an interesting one to spectators. Where the floors have been finished they present a very handsome appearance and there is every evidence that the hotel will well appointed throughout when completed.

A Successful Social.—The members of the Maccabee lodge gave a social on the lawn of D. D. Conway last Saturday evening, at which there was a good attendance. The members netted the sum of $17 by their efforts.

Half rates to the centennial celebration at Chicago and return, via the North-Western Line. Excursion tickets will be sold at one fare for round trip September 28, 29 and 30, limited to return until October 2, inclusive. For further particulars apply to agents Chicago and North-Western R'y.

Home visitor's excursion tickets to Indiana and Ohio, via the North-Western Line, will be sold at reduced rates on four Tuesdays, Sept. 1, 8, 15 and Oct. 6, limited to return within 30 days from the date of sale. For particulars as to territory to which excursion tickets may be sold, etc., apply to Agents Chicago & North-Western R'y.

The Chattanooga Advertising.

The Chattanooga Medicine Company, with laboratories and general offices at Chattanooga, Tennessee, and branch houses at St. Louis, Mo., and San Francisco, Cal., has become one of the largest proprietary medicine concerns in the world. In the growth of this great business two factors have been of dominant importance. The first is the quality of the products. Wine of Cardui and Theobald's Blood-Brought has been widely recognized and the advertising methods adopted have secured great renown. The publicity for these two medicines does not consist of the catch phrase and extravagant statement, too often employed in advertising today, but instead of the plain story of experience with the medicines given in the plain language of the people themselves. The following letter is a fair sample of the thousands of Wine of Cardui testimonials published during the last twenty years.

608 EAST 8TH AVENUE, CINCINNATI, OHIO, May 29, 1902. I consider Wine of Cardui a most excellent woman's remedy. It is certainly a specific as a tonic and regulator. For about four years I suffered with female trouble. I had intense pain in the back and head, leaving me so weak that I was unable to stand at times. Medicine did not seem to help, but after all remedies had failed me Wine of Cardui proved my one great true friend. What a relief I experienced! It came only a few days after I started taking it. I used it faithfully for four months and gradually grew stronger and better. I am now regular in the day and for the past two years have enjoyed blessed good health. I certainly wish every sick and suffering woman could know of your blessed medicine, how much pain and suffering it would prevent, and what a difference it would make in thousands of homes where there is sickness and sorrow to-day. I feel that Wine of Cardui it would bring relief and joy instead.

MARGARET GREENMYRE.

SHORT LOCALS

Shipping Minnows.—Some of our neighbors from the cranberry marshes have worked up quite a lucrative business by sending minnows to the summer resorts both north and south of here where fishing is one of the amusements indulged in. The poorest of the minnows bring one cent a piece, and some of the largest choicer ones cost the consumer two cents apiece, plus the freight. The fish caught on the marshes are what is known in this locality as "Mud" minnows, and they possess a great advantage over the shiner as bait from the fact that they live so readily when confined in narrow quarters, and also after being put out to the hook. In sections where shiners are used, a great deal of care has to be exercised in preserving the bait if it is the desire to have live minnows to fish with, while it is almost impossible to keep a batch of them over from one time to another. With the mud minnows very little care is necessary, the only thing necessary being to see that they are kept covered with water.

Illegal Hunting.—According to the statements of some of the hunters about town and that of farmers in this vicinity, there is more illegal hunting this year than there has been for some time. And this in the face of the fact that the state was never better supplied with game wardens appointed for the express purpose of protecting the game. All honest hunters want to see the game protected during the closed season, and are willing that the state should pay game wardens for this purpose, but it is rather discouraging to know that in spite of the immense amount of money that is expended every year, nothing is done toward accomplishing the purpose for which they are intended.

Catch The Kids.—An organ grinder with a monkey was in the city on Thursday and Friday, and the antics of the little animal amused many a kid about town, while the grown folks pretty generally took a hand in being amused also. The monkey had been trained to perform a number of tricks in a manner that was little short of human. The dago received several offers about town for his little pet, but turned them all down, as he well knew that his wind-broken hand organ would have proven a poor method of making a living without the monkey.

Preparing For Winter.—John Jones, a laborer who was employed on the dam, stole an overcoat and a pair of shoes from Joseph Gochey at the Choce house last week and started for new worlds to conquer. The sheriff caught him at Arpin and brought the boots, overcoat and Jones back. He was taken before Justice Brown where he paid a fine and costs amounting to $12.50, and departed minus the wearing apparel that he had intended for future use.

Wreck on the Green Bay.—A wreck occurred on the Green Bay and Western on Wednesday last which resulted in the east bound passenger not getting in here until about six o'clock in the evening. A pile driver and some other work cars were among the stuff damaged, and the trouble was caused by the breaking of an axle. The trouble occurred near Blair.

Brought a Fair Price.—The buildings on the H. W. estate recently purchased by the school board were auctioned off on Thursday and knocked down to Mrs. Peter Dessaint, the highest bidder for $350. This is a fair price when it is considered that the buildings will have to be moved before being put to any use.

A New Bus. Hathaway & Whitney have received a new bus for the Witter House and it is a beauty. Rubber tires, leather upholstery, plate glass windows, and polished brass trimmings. It is certainly a fine rig, the nicest thing of the kind that has ever been seen in town.

Lipchow-Young.—H. F. Lipchow and Mrs. Agnes Young were married on Saturday at the office of Justice Brown. Mr. Brown performing the ceremony. The wedding was a very quiet one, only a few intimate friends being present.

Lost a Finger.—John Ostrusky had to have the first finger of his right hand amputated on Saturday on account of a case of necrosis of the bone. The trouble was caused by an injury to the member some time ago.

A Pleasant Party.—About twenty couples assembled at the Elks hall on Tuesday evening and indulged in an informal hop to the enchanting strains of the Big Four. The evening was very pleasantly spent.

Y. P. S. C. E. Social.—The members of the Young People Society of Christian Endeavor will hold a social at the home of Mrs. Rossier on Thursday evening of this week to which all are invited.

Christian Scientists Organize.

At a business meeting held by the Christian Science society of this city on Aug. 5th, a permanent organization was formed and the following officers were elected:

First Reader—Edmund P. Arpin. Second Reader—Mrs. Eva L. Jero. Clerk—Mrs. Bertha N. Arpin. Treasurer—George B. Firman. Trustee—Mrs. Minnie R. Dietrich, Elias Raymond and L. B. Baldwin.

The Christian Science society now owns the old Congregational church building with temporary lease of the grounds. The interior of the building has been entirely refitted and newly decorated. Regular Sunday services are held at 11:30 a. m.; Sunday school at 11:30 a. m. Commencing September 1st, Wednesday evening meetings will be held at 7:45.

ALTDORF.

On Thursday, August 13, the people of Altendorf heard the sad tolling of the church bell telling that another soul had passed into eternity. It soon became known that Mr. and Mrs. Alois Huser had received a telegram telling them of the death of their son, Joseph, at Mobile, Ala. The news was a shock to everyone and it was thought that his death must be due to an accident as his parents had received a letter from him a few days before, saying he would soon come home to make them a visit. Since then a letter from the sister superior in the hospital where he died had reached the bereaved parents saying that he entered the hospital Aug. 9, suffering from erysipelas in the head and died Aug. 13. Joseph A. Huser was born at Altendorf, Switzerland, July 17, 1879, and came to this country in 1884. The family lived in New York for about a year, then came to Altendorf where they have resided ever since. About two years ago Joseph went to South Carolina to learn the saw filing trade, and later accepted a position with the Jackson Lumber Co., Jackson, Ala., where he was up to the time of his death. Besides his father and mother Joseph leaves seven brothers and three sisters to mourn his untimely death. A requiem to his memory will be said by the Rev. Van Sever of Rudolph. The family have the sympathy of the whole community in this sad hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hamm of Rudolph spent Sunday with Mrs. Hamm's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rensch.

Mrs. Catherine Steinke and Grandma Roland spent Thursday with Mrs. Schligh.

Mrs. James Keyes of Grand Rapids is visiting her father, Anton Wipfl.

Miss Sophia Steiner of Mauston is visiting relatives here.

ARPIN.

James Howlett, formerly of Hewitt, has opened a saloon at Pylesville, about half a mile south of this station, having put his place in operation last Wednesday. He has constructed a building 24x50 feet, two stories high, the down stairs of which is used for a saloon, and the upper story for a dance hall. It is the intention to give a grand opening dance at the place in the near future.

RUDOLPH.

According to all reports there will be a large crowd to the ball on Thursday evening which will be given by the E. F. Lodge. First class music has been engaged and it will be the effort of every member of the order to see that all who attend have a royal good time.

L. H. Weyers' store was broken into on Friday evening and some merchandise, shoes, etc. taken from the place, although nothing of great value was taken. It is thought to be the work of tramps. The safe was tampered with, but as there was no money in it there was no damage done.

On complaint of Rev. Peterson of the M. E. church of Grand Rapids, Peter Keyzer was brought before a justice in that city on Thursday last and fined $29 for keeping his saloon open on Sunday.

The Misses Rose and Beatrice Rattell spent the last week in the Rapids visiting friends and relatives before commencing their schools.

Mr. Wm. Slattery and daughter Frances leaves Wednesday for Canada where they will visit Mr. Slattery's sister and other relatives.

A large number from here attended the E. F. U. doings at Sherry last Friday evening and all report a most pleasant time.

H. Freeman has purchased the hall recently built by Mr. Logan and will fit the same up for his hardware store.

A Marriage license has been issued to Frank Demski of this town and Saley Skoesty of the town of Linwood.

Louis Lyons and daughter Della spent Sunday in Green Bay the guests of relatives.

Miss Laura Akey spent Sunday in Grand Rapids the guest of relatives and friends.

Mrs. C. C. Cronin is visiting her children at Grand Rapids this week.

L. H. Weyers made a business trip to the county seat on Friday.

Mr. Charles Theobald, an electrician with the Line and Light and Power Co., Lincoln, Ill., says that he occasionally troubles with severe headaches, the result of constipation and have at numerous times used Ke-Ga Tonic Laxative Syrup, which I think is the most satisfactory in its results of any medicine. It moves the bowels naturally and promptly, without pain or griping, and certainly cures the headaches caused by constipation. We always give it to our children to regulate and correct any bowel troubles. Sold by Sam Church, Druggist.

BIRON.

Miss Blanche, Elson of Stevens Point, who is visiting at the home of her uncle, Ben D. Mars, was very pleasantly surprised by a party of her young friends last evening. Supper was served and a most enjoyable evening spent.

Miss Mabel Horton departed on Saturday for Wisconsin, N. D., where she has accepted a position in a printing office.

A brother of Mrs. C. Olson arrived on Sunday evening from Norway and is a guest at the Olson home.

Miss Emma Dierichs of Stevens Point spent a week with Mrs. Joseph Sweeney, Jr.

A jolly band of Nekeosa friends visited A. M. Perry on Sunday afternoon.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklin's Kidney & Bladder Cure handy. It's the best salve on earth and will prevent fevers, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25c. at John E. Daly's Drug Store.

MARSHFIELD.

(From the News.)

When the Arpin company finished sawing at Arpin, Bar. Gaffney purchased the logs which had sunk to the bottom of the pond for a consideration of $50. It was all guesswork as to the number that might be found and he did not learn until recently how much he would lose or win by the speared off and the logs sealed he was elated to find that he was in possession of 100,000 feet of logs, some of which were pine, now very valuable. A portable saw mill will be used to convert them into lumber.

The Arpins erected the saw mill there fifteen years ago and each season since sawed from twelve to fourteen million feet. At intervals a water-soaked log would sink to the bottom of the pond, forming the large accumulation found by Mr. Gaffney. Sunken pine logs are being recovered in large numbers from the Wisconsin river. A concern has a crew of men grappling for logs from the river bottom between Stevens Point and Wausau.

Arpin is a desolate place since the Arpin company pulled out. The thirty odd houses in the place are nearly all vacant, with windows broken and weeds growing about them as high as the fences. The country about, however, is being settled up rapidly and it will not be many years before Arpin will be the trading point for a thriving farming community.

Speaking of the epidemic of hydrophobia in Central Wisconsin, Chas. E. Smith says that not long ago he had $200 worth of hogs die of the disease on his farm near Milladore. Several farmers in that locality also lost sheep and cattle in the same manner. A mad dog was traced from Stockton across country to Stevens Point, then to Junction City and Milladore. The animal when seen at the last named place was greatly emaciated and having dropped out of sight upon leaving there it is thought to have died. Animals bitten showed symptoms of hydrophobia within 30 to 40 days. In the Polish settlement near Stevens Point a small boy is said to have been a victim and died after suffering great agony. One farmer penned up a bull which had been lacerated by the dog mentioned. After a few weeks the disease developed in an intense form. The animal pawed, bellowed and tried to break out of its pen. Before it was shot, a hole had been pawed in the ground several feet deep.

The following item is from the Wisconsin Agriculturalist: "Many of the large buildings about Marshfield and other places in Central Wisconsin are painted black with white trimmings. It makes a pretty effect, and the buildings last longer for it. But instead of being painted with paint, the material used is coal tar. It is cheap and efficient. Mr. Wm. Blockside has his 32x54 barn painted with it and the cost of the material was $1.50, surely a small sum for such a service. Many others should profit by his experience."

Suicide Prevented.

The startling announcement that a preventive of suicide had been discovered will interest many. A run down system, or despondency invariably prede suicide and something has been found that will prevent that condition which makes suicide likely. At the first thought of self destruction take Electric Bitters. It being a great tonic and nerve will strengthen the nerves and build up the system. It's also a great Stomach, Liver and Kidney regulator. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by John E. Daly Druggist.

A grand ball will be given under the auspices of the E. F. U. of Sherry on Friday Evening Aug. 28. Everybody is invited.

Fred Becker returned home Monday after several weeks absence at Withee.

Mrs. Ed. Witney is entertaining her daughter Mrs. Briceon at present.

Again we hear the rumbling sound of the threshing machine.

Frank Parks and family spent Monday at Marshfield.

The manager of Grand Opera House calls attention to the Hans Hanson Company, appearing here on Friday evening. The company is no ordinary one and the merits of both the play and players are joined in the production of one of the most charming stories ever delineated.

This method is taken of calling personal attention to the date Aug. 28th and the company giving the assurance that theatre-goers will receive more than their money's worth in pleasure. Reserved seats are on sale at the same places.

POULTRY POINTERS.

Laying hens must have moist or milky. Always feed some whole grain at night.

Early hatched chickens usually make the best breeding fowls.

Feeding a little at a time and often is better than overfeeding at any time. A liberal use of ground bone will correct the tendency to laying soft shelled eggs.

Keeping fowls on hard floors will frequently cause swollen feet and legs. They must have some loose ground to scratch over.

Turkeys must have a good range to be profitable. They are insect eaters by nature and need a good range in order to thrive well and grow economically.

After the ducks and geese are through laying the feathers should be picked regularly. The time to pick them is when the feathers are ripe and before the fowls begin to lose them.

What a True Scholar is.

The scholar in the true sense is the man or woman for whom the schools have done their best. The scholar knows some one thing thoroughly and can carry his knowledge into action. With this he must have such knowledge of related subjects and of human life as will throw this special knowledge into proper perspective. Anything less than this is not scholarship. The man with knowledge and no perspective is a crank, a disturber of the peace, who needs a guardian to make his knowledge useful. The man who has common sense, but no special training, may be a fair citizen, but he can exert little influence that makes for progress. There may be a wisdom not of books, but it can be won by no easy process. To gain wisdom or skill, in school or out, is education. To do anything well requires special knowledge, and this is scholarship, whether attained in the university or in the school of life. It is the man who knows that has the right to speak.—President David Starr Jordan in Atlantic.

Epitaph Too Suggestive.

A man whose cheerful occupation is that of making tombstones is telling his friends about a woman who visited his place last week and said she wanted a nice tombstone put over her husband's grave, with some short, simple inscription on it.

He asked how she would like the word "Resurgam." She inquired as to its meaning, and when he translated it as "I shall rise again," she said, in a panic, "No, no, mister; make it 'Rest In Peace'."—New York Press.

DR. MCELWEE, The Specialist.

VESPER.

Farmers in this town report that the prospects for a crop of potatoes are very poor at this time. A sort of blight is affecting the vines which kills them, besides which the wet weather has started the tubers to rot. It is feared that the crop will be very short in consequence of these drawbacks.

The new opera house, which has been in course of construction at this place during the past summer, is about completed, and it is the intention to open it with a grand ball on Thursday evening. The house was built by a stock company and should fill a long felt want in this community.

Mrs. Conrad Harth and Mrs. Christian Claus of Jackson, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kissinger during the past week. They returned to their home on Tuesday.

Several of our people went to Marshfield on Tuesday and Wednesday to attend the fair.

Arizona Sunshine.

To one who has been there, says Captain W. Hodgson in Sunset Magazine, the name Arizona, first of all, suggests sunshine and plenty of it. Nowhere on the globe is sunshine more abundant, more appreciated or more harmless. Indeed, a sunstroke has never been recorded in this territory. Though all good Arizonians have crossed the Hualapai river, which act, according to tradition, divests one of the power to tell the truth, I believe their records are accurate as to sunstroke. The explanation is found in the fact that heat is not so much a matter of thermometer as of humidity.

The dry, hot air of the Arizona Desert is invigorating to the tired. One can learn to love the desert. There the sunrises and sunsets are intensely beautiful and nowhere on earth richer in color. This is sometimes called Sunset Land. It might also be called Land of Sunrise.—Sunset Magazine.

NEIGHBORHOOD NOTES.

Silas T. Parks died at his home at Meehan in the town of Plover at 7:35 o'clock Thursday evening after a long period of helplessness as the result of a stroke of paralysis, which he experienced last winter.

Mr. Parks was born at Hancock, N. Y., on March 30, 1830. He spent his youth in the vicinity of his native town and enlisted there in Co. F of the Hundred Forty-fourth New York and served for three years. He came to Wisconsin soon after the close of the war and settled in the town of Linwood, where he remained until about ten years ago when he removed to the town of Plover. Mrs. Parks died a number of years ago. They are survived by five children, R. W. Parks of Meehan, Alfred Parks of Grand Rapids, Mrs. Frank Pascavis, Sidney M. Parks and D. W. Parks, all of Meehan.

The funeral was held on Sunday. Mr. Park was a member of the G. A. R. Post and Odd Fellows lodge. —Stevens Point Journal.

BUSY! BUSY!

Unpacking, marking and arranging our mammoth stock of Fall and Winter Goods. This season our stock will be more complete and larger than any previous season, "dwarfing all others," and we wish to inform the people of Grand Rapids and vicinity that it has been our aim in making our purchases this fall to purchase the very best goods to be had, Quality being uppermost in our minds continually, and we feel more than confident that we will show the best assortment of clothing and furnishings this season shown in the city.

Made & Guaranteed by B. Kuppenheimer & Co. America's Leading Clothes Makers Chicago

We invite you to call and inspect for yourselves. When you come in ask to see the "Kuppenheimer" clothes which have no peer, they are seldom equaled and never excelled in the history of clothes making. "They keep coming for more" (people that have once bought this brand of clothing.) The fabrics are tasty, dependable and exclusive, the workmanship is perfect, the garments are the standard for style and fashion, and the more particular our trade is about these points the easier it is to please them all. We have this line of goods from

$20.00 down to $15.00

Our Overcoats are perfection itself, and we are showing three different lengths, the "Topper," the "K-length" and the full length, in many new cloths. Our stock in this line is very extensive, ranging from and we defy competition all the way down.

Our Children's and Boys' Suit Department should interest every mother in the county when she thinks of getting the boys their new fall suits. School will soon begin and we expect a fair representation of our stock in every schoolroom. If you want the right things, mothers, call on Kruger & Warner, they have them.

OUR R. & W. PANTS

Are considered by expert pants makers to be the best line of pants made in the United States. The R. & W. label which is found on every pair is a sufficient guarantee that they are right in every respect. Our Hat stock is continually being freshened each month with the new creations as they appear. The young men who are at all dressy know well where to go for the newest and best in everything. We carry an extensive line of Neckwear in all the different shapes and styles, from the "Little Midget" string to the more elaborate "Ascots," "Puffs" and "4-in hands."

Our Shoe Department deserves special mention.

This season we obtained the exclusive agency for the celebrated "Crossett" line of men's shoes. This line is well known and is considered as good as any in the market. If not in many points superior. We have all the new lasts, the Nitty, the Freak, the Lobster, in Patent Calf, Enamelled, Box Calf, Calf Kid, Vici Kid, Velour Calf. Some have the new viscolized sole which is saturated in oil, making a splendid fall and winter shoe and are proof against dampness. Ask to see them. Prices from

GRAND RAPIDS FORGING AHEAD

OUR ADVANTAGES AND PROGRESS VIVIDLY PORTRAYED.

G. E. Vandercook. Who Travels for the Milwaukee Sentinel, Was in the City on Monday and Tells of the City in the Following Words.

[Special Dispatch to the Sentinel.]

GRAND RAPIDS, WIS., Aug. 10.—Physical conditions, such as dividing a town by a stream, frequently exercise a retarding influence upon the growth and development of cities and villages. For over a half century two fairly good towns were located on the banks of the old Wisconsin with a factional business, social, and political rivalry existing which resulted in both Grand Rapids and Centralia being outstripped in industrial lines and in the process of city building by less favorably located towns up the river.

This factional spirit obtained for so long and grew so intense that the influence permeated the children of the two towns. When the boys of Grand Rapids attempted to cross the river they were stoned back to their own side, and Centralia urchins were treated in the same way, the parents sharing in the feeling which provoked and engendered jealousy.

Towns United Three Years Ago.

About three years ago a broader public spirit had its birth and the citizens commenced to realize that there should be no division of civic interest; that the welfare of both towns was interdependent and that there was a business, social and municipal relationship existing which, in the future, should be the bond between them. The estrangement and factionalism of years was forgotten, and the towns of Grand Rapids and Centralia became one under a new charter and organization and, under the name of Grand Rapids, a united, thrifty and enterprising city in the achievement.

While the consolidation affecting the two municipalities no doubt had something to do with the change in conditions to be noted, Grand Rapids awoke to the fact that her advantageous location entitled her to something better than she had experienced in all the years of the past. In the industrial evolution spreading over Wisconsin, the magic like influence which transforms sleepy, slow going towns and cities into energetic manufacturing centers, is nowhere more to be witnessed than in Grand Rapids. This transformation has come within the last two or three years and the results already accomplished indicate the creation of a new and important manufacturing city in Wisconsin, which, in the process of development and building, will rival many of the manufacturing centers of the state.

Rapids to Be Turned to Wealth.

The basis for what has already been done and what is now being executed in the way of building up manufacturing is the extensive water power furnished at this point by the Wisconsin river. During the old days of log driving and before the advent of the railways to transport the lumber to market, when the old Wisconsin was lined with lumber raft, there was no spot on the river more feared by the raftsmen than the rapids from which the town takes its name. Here hundreds of hardy men disappeared beneath the churning water, until it became a matter of river distinction to be able to say that a riverman had safely run Grand Rapids. This immense power, for so many years unused, is at last to be utilized to turn the wheels of the industries of this city, and, unless plans fail, the surplus power will be transmitted electrically to other towns and cities in this section.

The immense work of dam and mill building is now going on, conducted by hundreds of men and backed by an aggregate of capital which insures the success of the venture beyond the question of a doubt. Some time since this water power and the riparian rights became the property of the Consolidated Water Power and Paper company, the rights of other holders being purchased. To show the capitalists back of one of the largest industrial movements in Wisconsin, it can be stated that the principal stockholders in the company are the Witter estate, owning 201 shares, the Johnson estate with sixty shares, F. MacKinnon, thirty shares, W. D. Connor, twenty-five shares, the balance of the stock being distributed among local holders.

Will Create Over 8,000 Horsepower.

At the present time the work on the dam and immense paper mill is being rushed as rapidly as the labor supply will permit, and the plans have been made to have the plant in operation during this fall. The claim is made that this dam now in process of building will create over 8,000 horse power, sufficient to supply motive power to the mills, and, in addition, furnish power to a number of other important industries now being put in or already in operation.

In addition to the paper mill industry of local importance, the extensive paper and pulp mills of the Centralia Pulp and Water Power company, the J. Edwards Manufacturing company, the Grand Rapids Pulp and Paper company—all located in close range—have an industrial bearing upon the welfare of this city, for many of the laboring men reside here and this is the base of supply.

Distinct from the paper mills, among other important industries of the city is the extensive flouring mill plant of the Grand Rapids Milling company, with an entirely new modern mill and elevator, the erection of which was made necessary by the fact that the development of the water power made it necessary to abandon the old plant. The Badger Box and Lumber company, in which A. H. Stange, the well known Merrill lumberman, is interested, has doubled its manufacturing capacity during the last year. One of the largest employers of labor in the city is the furniture factory of Oberbeck Brothers, who employ a minimum of at least 300 hands the year around. The MacKinnon Manufacturing company has recently added to its extensive hub and spoke mills a complete establishment for the manufacture of wagons, and employs from 75 to 100 hands. The Lyons Manufacturing company is conducting the business of turning out inside finishings, and is gradually increasing the size of its plant.

Has Fine Railroad Facilities.

So far as railroad communications are concerned, Grand Rapids is exceedingly well located. For many years it was one of the principal stations on the Milwaukee road and the Green Bay and Western railway. Two years ago the Northwestern built through from Princeton to Marshfield, opening up an extensive agricultural section, well settled and rich in resources. The Wisconsin Central purchased what was known as the Port Edwards road, connecting that point with Marshfield, at about the same time that the Northwestern completed its line. This gives Grand Rapids the benefit of every road of any consequence in the state, and makes it a railroad center of considerable importance. From the viewpoint of future development along manufacturing lines, few towns in Wisconsin can claim the advantages of better railroad facilities.

Coming with this industrial activity is a consequent agricultural development in the surrounding sections which will soon place Wood county among the list of well settled farming counties of the state. Reliable business men, owners of extensive tracts of land from which they have removed the timber, state that all of the farm lands of Wood county practically have changed hands during the last five years. These lands principally have fallen into the hands of actual settlers, who have gone into farming and are succeeding beyond most sanguine expectations.

New Industry Is Sheep Fattening.

The claim is made that during the last three years more settlers have come into Wood county than in any section of the state. As an incident of agricultural development it can be stated that the stockmen of the west are taking advantage of this locality to ship sheep from Wyoming and Montana, which are being pastured here, their owner purchasing a tract of 4,000 acres for the purpose, located in the border towns between Wood and Adams counties.

In the matter of municipal improvements Grand Rapids is taking steps in advance of many of the cities that have enjoyed greater industrial activity in the past. It is estimated that, during the last year, between $150,000 and $175,000 have been expended for waterworks and sewer improvements alone, while large amounts have been expended for street and sidewalk improvements.

Educational Advantages Substantial.

Few towns in the west have as complete and excellent a school equipment in buildings and facilities. Recently the new Lincoln High school has been completed at a cost approximating $50,000, and, in addition, there are four other modern school buildings. Connected with the Lincoln school is the County Normal Training school for teachers, Wood county following in the lead of Marathon by being one of the first counties in the central portion of the state to take advantage of this feature connected with the common school system of the state. Ultimately it is planned to erect and equip a separate building for the county training school, and to make this an important step in the training of the teachers of the county.

An educational project of considerable influence is planned when the bequest of the late J. D. Witter to the city of Grand Rapids becomes available, three years from now. This bequest gave the board of education of this city $50,000 to be devoted to educational purposes, and it is planned to build a manual training school with a domestic science department.

There is not a vacant dwelling house in Grand Rapids nor is there an unoccupied room suitable to accommodate residents. Real estate men and builders assert that 400 cottages would not furnish accommodations for those who desire to make this city their home, and who have come here as laborers. A new manufacturing concern in the nature of a large machine shop is looking for a location, and negotiations are now pending for a site. This will be consummated during the week it is claimed and represents an investment of at least $25,000. New business blocks are being built and planned, and the next year will show a building boom never before experienced in the city.

In Justice Court.

John Rosendran was brought before Justice Brown on Friday on a charge of being drunk. The judge made it 25 and costs and as John did not see fit to liquidate he was given five days in the county jail.

Nelson Strait, an old soldier from Arpin was brought before Justice Brown on Saturday on a charge of indecent exposure. He was found guilty and given twenty days in the county jail for his misdemeanor. The day before Strait was taken before Judge Conway and examined as to his sanity, but the judge decided that in spite of his actions he was sane and he was discharged of this score.

ROBBERY AT RUDOLPH.

Aged Man Beaten and Robbed at his Home by Midnight Visitors.

Conrad Grab and Mary Grab, his daughter, who reside in the town of Rudolph about half way between this city and Stevens Point, were in the city on Friday. The girl stated that two men had appeared at their home about one o'clock Friday morning, and gaining admission to the house by rapping, had demanded the money in the house.

The girl stated that at first the demand was refused, whereupon they set upon the old man and beat him in a brutal manner. The girl then secured a satchel containing $11, and handing it to the men, ran away. She states that the men pursued her and fired two shots after her, neither of which took effect.

A statement was made before Justice Brown of the facts in the case and an effort is being made to locate the two robbers, although nothing has been heard of them as yet.

Hunting Licenses Received.

County Clerk Renne received his first consignment of hunting licenses on Thursday, and in spite of the fact that it is yet several weeks before the hunting season opens, he has already issued a number of licenses to hunters. R. H. Bullis of Dexterville secured No. 1 of the lot and business has since been moving along fairly good.

There is a slight difference in the licenses this year. They are printed on white cardboard instead of yellow as last year, and two of the coupons are fastened on each end of the license which enables the hunter to detach them according to law.

Last year the coupons were all on one end, and the law stated that they were not good if detached, and it was impossible to get two of the coupons off that matched with out the detaching the third, so that the law could not be complied with to the letter. However, it is doubtful if this made any difference to the average hunter.

The indications are that there will be a large number of licenses issued this year, but the number should not be as large as last year, as the age limit is raised, hunters are not allowed to sell game, and farmers are allowed to hunt on their own land without a license, and all of these things should contribute in a measure to a reduction in the number of licenses issued.

Death of Hazel Decker.

Hazel, the sixteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Decker of this city, died on Thursday, August 6th, after an illness of considerable length.

Miss Hazel had been ailing more or less for the past six years, and although everything possible had been done to aid her it was impossible to save her life, and she passed away peacefully with her friends about her.

The funeral was held from the home on Friday, Rev. E. J. H. Shaw conducting the funeral services, and a large concourse of friends followed the remains to their last resting place.

The members of the Congregational society had lined the grave so that it presented a very beautiful appearance and everything possible was done to mitigate the sorrow of the grief stricken parents, who have the sympathy of the community in their affliction.

New Graphite Plant.

The Pioneer Graphite Co. has under consideration plans and specifications for a crushing and pulverizing plant to be erected in the graphite property at Junction City. It is probable that active work on the plant will be commenced early in September and that the mill will be ready to run by January 1. The plant will be a rather pretentious structure and will be equipped with all the facilities necessary to make all the usual graphite products. The property of this company is located a little to the north of the Wisconsin Graphite Co.'s claims and is within 70 rods of the Milwaukee tracks. It is expected a spur will be laid into the mill site at an early date.—Stevens Point Journal.

In Supreme Court.

The cases of Mrs. Lydia Duncan and Mrs. Anna Lyon have been noticed for trial in the supreme court, and will probably come up some time in December if nothing unforeseen intervenes.

Mrs. Duncan got judgment against the city for $2,100 in circuit court for injuries received on a defective sidewalk, but the city officers consider this amount excessive.

Mrs. Lyon was awarded damages in the sum of $4,000 by the jury, but Judge Webb cut this amount down to $2500, considering that the amount awarded by the jury was excessive. The plaintiffs are both represented in the supreme court by Conway & Jeffrey and Goggins & Brazeau have the city's side of the case.

Notice To Hunters.

All persons are warned and hereby notified not to hunt on the lands of the Taylor & Hogg company, known as the sheep ranch in the town of Rome, Adams county. Also to keep their dogs off the land, as any dog caught worrying the sheep will be shot without further notice.

GEORGE TAYLOR.

Work Progressing on Bridge.

The east span of the bridge was finished on Monday with the exception of the planking on the walkway. The workmen have removed their hoisting engine to the west side and will operate from there hereafter.

New Cranberry Company.

A new Cranberry Company has been organized in this city during the past week, which will be known as the Jacob Searles Cranberry company. The new organization will be a stock company and all of the stock has been subscribed for, although the charter has not been secured as yet.

The members of the new company are Jacob Searles, John A. Gaynor, Geo. W. Paulus, Dr. O. T. Hougren and F. J. Wood. They have secured an option on the W. C. Trahern marsh which comprises 1200 acres of land, about 100 acres of which is being picked. The land is located on both sides of the Green Bay & Western track at Walker station and joins the Searles Brothers marsh at that place.

Several of the members of the new company are already interested in cranberry culture and there is no reason why the venture should not be a success from a financial view point. The marsh they have purchased has been picked over for a number of years and has yielded good profits for the owner.

Life of Pope Leo.

The publishers of the Tribune have secured the right to sell the life of Pope Leo XIII in this section, and all readers of the Tribune have a chance to secure this valuable and interesting work at a nominal cost. The book is the work of the Rev. James J. McGovern, D. D., author of the "History of the Catholic Church in Illinois."

The book contains over five hundred pages and is profusely illustrated with fine half tone pictures. This book will be given as a premium with the Tribune, the cost of the paper for one year and the book being but $2.00. Many of these books are being sold by canvassers at $2.00 and $2.50 for the book alone, while the subscriber to the Tribune pays but 50 cents for it. This is cheaper than the books can be bought at wholesale in lots of 500.

There will also be a German edition of the book published in two or three weeks and where wanted the history will be furnished in the German language.

Remember that $2.00 gives you the Life of Pope Leo and the Tribune for one year, or if you are already a subscriber to the paper you can secure the book by paying all arrearages and 2.00 for the coming year.

Entertained at Cinch.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Cady entertained at party of friends at their home on Thursday evening in honor of their guest, Miss Rose Appleton. The evening was spent in playing cinch and nine tables accommodating thirty-six players were in use.

Miss Ethel Kelley carried off the prize among the ladies for the largest number of games won and F. L. Steib was the champion among the gentlemen present, his skill in cutting the cards also contributing a share toward the victory. Miss Nellie Ward and Otto Roemus were awarded the consolation prizes. A very pleasant evening was spent by those present.

Broke A Leg.

Conductor H. L. Bartholomew met with a distressing accident on Friday evening which will result in incapacitating him from work for some time. He was out riding near the south side, and in passing a team he turned from the road and one of the wheels striking an obstruction he was thrown from the buggy and landed on the ground in such a manner that his left leg was broken near the ankle. The fracture was reduced by a surgeon, and while so serious results are anticipated, the accident will necessarily keep him from taking his run for some time.

May Build Machine Shop.

William Libert of Kaukauna has been in the city the past few days looking over the city with a view to building a foundry and machine shop here.

Whether anything will come of the matter cannot be said at this time. Some of the business men have interested themselves in the matter, but most of the sites where a manufacturing plant could be located are held so high as to be almost prohibitive.

W. G. Hubbell Dead.

W. G. Hubbell of Plainfield, who was well known in this city and vicinity, died in the asylum at Oshkosh on the 3d of August, having been ailing for the past two years.

Mr. Hubbell formerly traveled thru this section selling grave stones and in this capacity made many acquaintances and friends. The funeral was held last Tuesday.

Letter List.

East Side.—F. J. Cormolly, Joe Oudekiltz, Cennie Jonson, Bert Miller, Jesse Parker, D. D. Robinson, O. L. Sherman, John L. Schewich, I. H. Stewart, Raymond Faal, Stevens Withers, Wm. J. Zingy, Miss Maggie Burns, Esther Dix, Ida Dummer, Dora Hess, Mrs. L. Heisbo, Mrs. John Schluez.

West Side.—J. E. Krozickowski, Wm. Tennant.

Lawn Social.

The ladies of the Maccabees will give a reception on the joint lawn of D. D. Conway and Chas. Gotke Saturday afternoon and evening, Aug. 15th. Coffee, sandwiches, ice cream and cake and other dainties will be served at popular prices, a large attendance is desired and all are cordially invited.

PRINCE CHARMING

By MARY STINTON LEWIS

Copyright, 1914, by T. C. McClure

Clare Worthington sat before the fire in the great old paneled library. She had tried to read, but her book had slipped, unheeded, to the floor, while her thoughts wandered to that evening a week ago when the man whom she was now awaiting had asked her to be his wife. She had begged for a few days in which to consider his answer, and, after a week of severe mental struggle, she that morning had mailed to him the following letter:

"My Dear Mr. Staunton: It seems best to write what I have to say, as I have an explanation to make without which I should not feel justified in giving you an answer. I was always a complete failure as an actress, and so my only safety lies in entire truthfulness. I trust it will prove best in the end for both of us.

"I am not in love with you, and it has always been a part of my creed that marriage without love is a terrible mistake. I have seen the girls with whom I have grown up make, one by one, what the world calls 'excellent matches.' I, meanwhile, have clung desperately to my ideals and waited for the Prince Charming who should carry me off to his magic castle in Wonderland. But Prince Charming has never come. And now is it best to wait for him any longer? It is very doubtful whether he will ever come, and even if he did, would Wonderland be a Wonderland after all to a woman of thirty-two years—or more? I think not.

"But I believe in marriage, and I believe in it for myself. I lead a busy, happy life, but I long for wider scope,

"SPRING!" she cried, impulsively, as she saw the first buds.

After usefulness, closer friendship. Above all, I need to be needed as only a married woman can be needed. And so I come to tell you that I will be your wife. You are too generous to misunderstand my motives or to think that I could not give you all the honor, confidence, trust, I feel for you, too, a liking more cordial than I have ever felt for any one else man or woman. Oh, we are good companions, are we not? Do you remember that first walk we took in the park and what then we had when snow, unadorned, fell? A man and woman, could there be more, I think, unless they enjoy each other, unless they have good times together? But you and I always do. And, do you know, I am only just beginning to feel what earnestness has underlain all your merry banter.

"Oh, you will give me really, really all that I need and I shall make you happy. I will make you happy. If I did not feel that, I would not marry you. You know that. So you will not be hurt about Prince Charming, and I will bury him deep, deep, you and I. Who knows what spirit of peace and happiness may rise out of his grave?"

"CLARE!"

When the letter had slipped out of the girl's fingers into the box and she had locked the door upon it, she had felt as though an era of her life had closed. The old world had closed, yielding place to the new. But though she was so young, she was for whom she had so stoutly fought, she knew that her doubts were gone and her heart clear. It was her wisdom alone that she doubted. Then as she wanted now to bury her lover's step upon the flags outside she was conscious of a vague fear, a vague yearning, for the "night hours."

A quick footstep in the hall startled her out of her reverie. She glanced at the clock on the mantle. It was not yet 8, and Sprague Staunton rarely called before half after 8. Then it flashed across her mind that this would be different from other calls—that he would be eager to reach her as soon as possible, that he would not sit there in the straight-backed chair on the opposite side of the fireplace and talk with her with formal politeness, as he had always done before. He was coming with a lover's rights. He would take her in his arms—she felt herself trembling as she stepped to the hall door. The maid entered with a note. "Care tore it open with fingers that shook."

"My Dear Clare—I cannot let you marry me. When I tell you this you will realize, perhaps, why you have never done, what my love for you means to me. I love you passionately, ly, entirely, with all my strength, and that is the reason that I must give you up. Thank you—oh, thank you—for being honest with me.

"And wait, dear, for Prince Charming. If he never finds you, you will at least have been true to what is best in you. In being false to that, I am sure you would never find that wider scope and the bigger usefulness for which you long. Some would, in your place, perhaps, but not you. You see that instead of being a crusty old bachelor, as I ought to be, I am a young idealist still—but that is all your fault.

"I am going to drop in soon after my note reaches you, just for a quiet goodby. I find that I cannot go away without that. There is a piece of work in London that must be looked after, and I am glad to take the chance of a sea trip. Faithfully yours,

"SPRAGUE STAUNTON."

As the girl finished reading the letter, the fire, crackling merrily, threw a spark at her feet. She watched it slowly lose its way into the Persian rug, then flicker and go out. She realized with a start that she had not extinguished it. Raising she swept the hearthstone clear of ashes and arranged the fender to protect the rug. Stepping to the glass she pinned a stray lock of hair into its place. Then she sat down and tried to think. But her mind seemed strangely blank. Even the crackling of the fire annoyed her.

She could not have told whether she had sat there a minute or an hour when the maid brought her Sprague Staunton's card.

When he came in, the room seemed to brighten. There was a sunshine about his personality which every one felt without quite understanding. This evening his face was unclouded. The girl looked at him and wondered. Was this the man whose letter lay on her lap?

"You got my note? Is it all right?" he asked her. She nodded silently.

Then, with a quick change of tone: "Thank you," he said, "and now I am off on a sea trip, old sea dog that I am. I can fairly smell the salt already."

"You ought to have been a sailor," she said, quickly responsive.

And so they talked of the trip, of his stay in London, of her plans for the coming winter—of everything save of the one subject that lay heavy on both their hearts.

When he rose to go, Clare rose, too, and stood before him, her back to the fire. As the light struck suddenly upon his face she saw that his eyes were full of tenderness. But his voice did not break and the grip of his hand was firm when he bade her goodby.

As she heard his quick step ring along the hall, the room began suddenly to swim round her. Her throat grew dry, her heart seemed to stop beating. In a moment the heavy front door would open and close again and Sprague Staunton would be gone out of her life forever.

Mastered by an emotion such as she had never known, she stretched out her arms blindly and called his name. She heard the front door open. Oh, if he should not hear! She forgot that she could recall him by a note on the morrow, forgot everything save that he was going from her and that she must not let him go.

"Sprague!" she cried desperately.

"Sprague!"

In an instant he was beside her and had caught her in his arms.

"I love you!" he said, "I love you—Prince Charming!" she whispered.

Clare With Arms and Backs.

Clare, with high backs and arms, after coming into general use with the renaissance, began to be ornamented with an amount of carving and gilding that has hardly since been equaled, which came naturally from the artistic tastes of the period. Their size, form and the amount of decoration bestowed on them, indicated the rank, fortune, authority or social position of their possessors. Bishops and abbots had seats corresponding with their dignity. While these below them sat on stools or benches. Only the king and queen and persons of high rank could be seated on chairs with arms and backs in the time of Catherine de Medici, and her sons, courtiers and favorites sat about them on stools called tabourets.

This manner of expressing difference of rank prevailed under Louis XIV, and his successors down to the French revolution. To the chairs (benches) carved succeeded the armchairs, as we call them these times, which, with important variations, is much the same as to the reign of Louis XIV. Specimens of the stools used by the favorites and ladies of honor of the king and queen may still be seen in the royal palaces of France. They were changed into the modern parlor chair by simply adding a back, which has hardly made them more comfortable.

Photographing Lightning.

"To successfully photograph a flash of lightning," says an expert amateur, "the exposure must be made at night. This is the whole secret of success. When a thunderstorm occurs learn the direction of its approach and point and focus the camera in that direction. If a box camera is used no focusing is needed; if a cycle model is used focus at a hundred or more feet, the camera resting on a tripod or other support. Uncap the lens or open the shutter and leave open until a brilliant flash makes its appearance within the field of the lens; then close the shutter or cap the lens at once, and you will find that you have a negative which upon development will give you a flash of lightning photo.

"Pay no attention to the minor flashes or to what is called 'shoot lightning,' as both forms only add to the detail of your negative. Wait for the brilliant flash of chain lightning, and the river of light will with its great intensity photograph itself."

The Glory of California Scenery.

As long as there remains the love of beauty to the human soul so long will the glory of California scenery and that of the whole Pacific coast prove a source of inspiration to the poetic mind. Descriptive verse has been from the beginning a marked feature of the literature of this region. In fact, the term "landscape poets" may be properly applied to this body of song birds which seemed to the late Maurice Thompson to have taken "complete possession of the entire western seaboard." Suffice it to say that if a volume of verse were written by a Californian which reflected nothing of the state's scenic beauty or its warmth of color it would not only come as a surprise to most readers, but the loyalty of the poet might be seriously questioned. While all this display of local color may seem to represent an effort on the part of Californians to place upon their work the stamp of a definite locality, and may be considered by some a cheap form of art, it is this very sensitiveness to beauty and grandeur with which nature has clothed the west that offers the most promise of its rapid literary advancement—a sensitiveness, moreover, that will become more and more acute with the cultivation of the higher faculties through increasing educational growth.—Herbert Bashford in Atlantic.

All Have an "Itch" in Them.

"Speaking of Serbian names," said an observant man, "they are not so bad when you once get used to them, nor are they so hard to pronounce. You no doubt have noticed that all Serbian names end with a syllable having some resemblance to the English word 'itch.' Some of the names end in 'ies' or just with 'ie.' Sometimes it is 'ich' or 'ies' or 'isch,' and so on. It makes no difference how the name ends, you will make no mistake if you give the sound of 'itch' to the last syllable. That will be the proper Serbian sound, for Petrovich or Petrovie would be correct, and in both instances the word would be pronounced in the same way, by sounding the 'itch.' Serbian names are all right when one gets used to them, but they are strange and shocking when put into the columns of English newspapers."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Goats That Flail.

A species of the wild goat, the Capra rupell, haunts the rocks of the Abyssinian highlands and manages to hold its own as to fight against all enemies, with the exception of the fleet-footed jackal, an adversary whose co-operative tactics and keenness of scent make flight unavailing and have led the Europeans to the conclusion that under certain circumstances valor may be the better part of discretion. The yelp of an approaching band of jackals is therefore a signal for instant rally on the part of the goats. The animals crowd around their kids, and the bucks rush forward en masse, bawling away with a rage that lays out a yeller at every spring and makes the survivors stand back howling and cowering.

Influence of Laughter on Digestion.

The efficacy of laughter as an aid to assimilation and alimentation has passed into such a common physiological truism that no one of ordinary intelligence needs to have the principle upon which it works elucidated for his understanding in these days of widely disseminated dietetic knowledge. The average person who is not continuously "in the dumps" knows from experience that laughter is good for digestion, says What to Eat. It should be borne in mind that mirth and good cheer need not express themselves in convulsive laughter in order to induce digestion. An amiable, contented, calm and equable temperament has marked influence upon the digestive processes without laughter.

A Silver Riddle.

English train car companies use in converting the money taken in what is called a "silver riddle." Four or five frames are placed on the top of each other, and a given quantity of mixed silver is emptied in on to the topmost. Shake the latter and all the pieces except the half-crowns will disappear through the wire net arrangement on to the frame below. Shake frame No. 2 and everything goes through except the florins, and thus the coins are eventually exhausted down to the three-penny pieces.

A Desperate Character.

First Desmond Husbend, Well, Sir, I've been gone and done it. My wife wouldn't give me the hitchkey again this morning, so I took it by force—by force, do you hear me?

Second Little admirably! Say, old man, don't let my wife hear that. She'll never let me go out with you again.

One He Couldn't Lose.

Peddler—Want to buy an umbrella cheap, boss?

Morehead—No; what's the use? Whenever I buy an umbrella somebody steals it.

Peddler—Well, this one ain't worth stealing.—Exchange.

The Reminder.

"Mamma," said Benne as there came a brief pause in the conversation on the part of the callers, "Isn't it time for you to ask me what I learned at the kindergarten today? If you don't do it pretty soon I'll forget what you told me to say."—Chicago Tribune.

Wouldn't Show.

Misses (greatly shocked)—Is it possible, Mary, you are making bread without having washed your hands?

Now Grl—Lor, what's the difference, mum? It's brown bread.

A man is at his best when he is attending to his own business.—Dallas News.

Land Owner's Rights.

Farmers frequently complain of hunters entering their fields, tramping on their grain, etc. The law in the case is as follows:

"Any person who shall enter into any growing or standing grain not his own, with fire-arms or permit his dog to enter into any such grain, without the permission of the owner or occupant of the land on which such grain is situated or any person who shall without permission of the owner hunt or shoot on the premises of another enclosed by a fence and used as a pasture for stock, or shall hunt or shoot upon any other land of another after being notified not to hunt or shoot thereon, shall be punished by a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than ten dollars and in default of payment thereof, shall be imprisoned in the county jail not less than ten days nor more than thirty days; provided, that this section shall not limit or in any way affect civil liability on account of such trespass. Any owner or occupant of land may give the notice provided for in this section by maintaining sign boards, at least one foot square, containing such notice upon at least every forty acres of the premises sought to be protected, in at least two conspicuous places, or by giving personal, written or verbal notice."

Printed signs, giving the notice provided for in the above extract may be procured at small expense at this office.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abscess on my right lung," writes J. F. Hughes of DuPont, Ga., "and gave me up. Every body thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by John E. Daly Drug Store. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

Absinth is Made and Used to a great extent in Wisconsin

Absinth, the green tincture of France is now being produced in considerable quantities in this country, and is being used to an alarming extent.

In some sections of Wisconsin the wormwood is cultivated, and it is from this plant that the oil is distilled for absinth.

The Wisconsin growers of wormwood and distillers of the oil at first shipped nearly all their output to Europe, but now they find a good market for it in this country and at almost fabulous prices.

A person under the influence of the drug experiences the most pleasant dreams and imaginings; but like all excesses, it kills gentle emotions, and frees kindness, raises in man the spirit of the beast and accomplishes more vile deeds than are dreamed of.

A large drink of absinth will produce insensibility, convulsions, dilated pupils, sluggish pulse and other serious effects, the after effect often including trembling hands, arms and legs, intense thirst, tingling in the ears, illusions of sight and hearing, and other horrifying results.

So strong a hold has the use of absinth gained in France that the government has made repeated efforts to suppress its sale. Its use in America is increasing every day. The rank poison is kept by nearly every saloonist in every city or town.

The Wisconsin growers of wormwood and distillers of the oil at first shipped nearly all their output to Europe, but now they find a good market for it in this country and at almost fabulous prices.

A person under the influence of the drug experiences the most pleasant dreams and imaginings; but like all excesses, it kills gentle emotions, and frees kindness, raises in man the spirit of the beast and accomplishes more vile deeds than are dreamed of.

A large drink of absinth will produce insensibility, convulsions, dilated pupils, sluggish pulse and other serious effects, the after effect often including trembling hands, arms and legs, intense thirst, tingling in the ears, illusions of sight and hearing, and other horrifying results.

So strong a hold has the use of absinth gained in France that the government has made repeated efforts to suppress its sale. Its use in America is increasing every day. The rank poison is kept by nearly every saloonist in every city or town.

GO BETWEEN

[Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure.]
Mrs. Maguire rolled up her knitting with a nervous click of the needles.
"If that man don't quit hanging round here," she muttered, "tis in the crazy house I'll be."
She rose and turned her back on the door of the outer waiting room. But the man's face haunted her. It was the helpless look in his eyes of one suddenly cut loose from the ordinary routine of life and cast adrift which Mrs. Maguire could not forget.
She had seen it many times in the last few days, occasionally during the hours when he stood watching outward bound passengers and more often as he scanned the occupants of the ladies' waiting room. In the weariness of his search the vigor of middle life was giving place to age.
"Tis neither food nor sleep he's had this week past," Mrs. Maguire thought and turned with a sudden determination to speak to him.
Even as she did so he staggered and sat down wearily. One hand went out and, grasping a newspaper which lay near, held it before his face. Above it his eyes were fixed in a hungry gaze. Mrs. Maguire knew that his search was ended.
She turned slowly, following the direction of his eyes, and noticed for the first time a small, pale woman sitting with her profile toward the door. The brown hair which lay softly on her temples was plentifully streaked with gray. Her blue eyes held the brightness of unshed tears. The hands, which held a shabby gripsack on her lap, clutched it as if it were some fast slipping resolve.
Mrs. Maguire left the room and went straight to the man who sat outside.
"Is that who you've been looking for?" she asked quietly.
He tore his gaze away with a start of surprise and nodded.
"Your wife?"
"Yes."
Mrs. Maguire waited a moment. Then she ventured again:
"What did she leave you for?"
"Don't think it wasn't her fault!" he stopped, choking. "She thought I had stopped loving her."
Suddenly his face began to work. "Heater," he muttered, with groping fingers, "Heater—you don't know what the house is without you!"
Mrs. Maguire laid a hand on his shoulder and shook him slightly.
"Look here," she demanded, "is it trying to live without food or sleep you've been this past week?"
His eyes had come back to the quiet figure in the ladies' waiting room as if he grumbled being shut out of even for a moment. His face told the look of one for whom all things were at an end.
Mrs. Maguire left him and sauntered slowly back to her own domain. Presently she approached the woman with the shabby gripsack.
"Was it you who was asking me about the western trains, ma'am?" she inquired casually.
"No." The woman's eyes were raised in mild surprise for a moment as she shook her head.
"Tis a more comfortable chair you might as well have if you're long to wait," Mrs. Maguire said civilly.
"Thank you, but it is hardly worth while."
Still Mrs. Maguire lingered with such evident desire to do something for the comfort of this passenger that the latter felt constrained by her kindly intent to speak again. "The express for New York leaves at 10:45, does it not?" she asked.
"Yes, ma'am, at 10:45."
Then Mrs. Maguire moved away. She picked up a magazine and busily scanned it on the table, shook out some pillows on a couch near the door and slipped outside.
"Tis to New York she's going," she whispered eagerly to the man who still held the paper before his face. "You've got twenty minutes. Take your ticket and for the love of heaven, be on a train before it goes. Tis only a matter of minutes now."
When Mrs. Maguire did not see and hear him, what a relief it was to her. She had just what she wanted, a woman, coming the result of a sleeping car, awoken and left her behind as the engine backed against the rails.
For a while she counted her eyes of gold. Her hands went on, gradually, doing the best she could for him.
"Tis the man that was as the arm of youth in the strength of his love would not let her. With a blessed sense of safety, her eyes opened and rested on the old worn edge of a familiar overcoat which only a few weeks before her own fingers had repaired.
"Hi, son!"
In the waning light the face of the man, who through love or for the loss of her had used within a week, was white with pleading.
And the woman stumbled forward against his breast.

MADNESS IN COLORS.

TINTS THAT WILL TURN THE BRAIN AND INVITE DEATH.

Purple is the Most Lethal of All Colors, and Scarlet is Nearly as Bad. Blue Will Stimulate the Brain, but It Will Wreck the Nerves.

If purple walls and red tinted windows surrounded you for a month, with no color but purple around you, by the end of that time you would be a madman. No matter how strong the brain might be, it would not stand the strain, and it is doubtful if you would ever recover your reason, for purple is the most dangerous color there is in its effects on the brain, which it reaches by way of the nerves of the eye.

A splash of two of any other color in the room would save your reason for some time longer, but dead purple would kill you eventually as surely as would foul air. Scarlet is as bad, but scarlet has a different effect. It produces what is called homicidal mania—a madness that drives its victim to kill his fellows, especially his nearest relatives. Even on animals scarlet has this effect. It will drive a bull or a tiger to charge a naked spear. But purple, on the contrary, brings on melancholy or suicidal mania.

Blue, as long as there is no trace of red in it, stimulates the brain and helps it, but its effect on your nerves, if you are saturated with it and cannot get away from it, is terrible. Scientists class blue as a kind of drug in its effects on the brain.

It excites the imagination and gives a craving for music and staccato, but it has a reaction that wrecks the nerves. If you doubt it stare hard for a few minutes at a large sheet of bright blue paper or cloth—not flowers, for there is a good deal of green in their blue—and you will find that it will make your eyes ache and give you a restless, uneasy feeling.

Green, on the other hand, is the king of colors, and no amount of it can do any harm. On the contrary, it soothes the whole system and preserves the eyesight. If you were shut up in an artificial green light for a month it would develop your eyesight immensely, but it would be fatal, because when you returned to the world you would be utterly unable to stand ordinary lights and colors and you would certainly contract ophthalmia, or possibly destroy the optic nerve altogether unless you were very unskillful to take great care.

Most people imagine the sky in clear weather to be blue. It is really white tinged with green. It is only the distance and clearness which make it seem blue.

Green is so soothing that it makes a big difference in the length of an illness, helping the system to fight the disease, and nearly all hospital wards have every possible detail about them colored green. Sage green is the most soothing tint of all metallic green, however, is by no means so good.

Solitary confinement in a yellow cell for six weeks will hopelessly weaken any system and produce chronic hysteria. A long course of it will produce foolish humors, and even on a guinea pig or a rabbit will drive the animal at last to bite and wound itself or reduce it to such a state of nervousness that it will die of sheer fright if suddenly startled.

On the other hand, if you are not smothered with it yellow is the healthiest, cheeriest color there is, and will make a dark room bright and habitable when even green would be cold and depressing. But to be well "soused" with yellow day and night, and to be unable to get away from it, would bring you to nervous madness within two months at the outside.

Shed dead white, unbroken, will destroy your eyesight as surely as confinement would if you are exposed to it for a few days a week at the latest. It kills the optic nerves, and the sight goes out like a candle, while the effort on the brain is so maddening that blindness is almost a relief.

This is why arctic explorers have to wear colored goggles of green tinted glass; otherwise "snow blindness" as it is called, and which is really "white blindness," is almost a certainty. Even in the polar regions, though, the white is not complete. The sky looks blue. If it did not be man could keep his eyes steady there without glasses. New York News.

Not Serious.

"How is your brother the poet?"
"He has just undergone an operation. You see he had a very bad case of hemorrhoids."
"That's it?"
"Yes, he has had an extraordinary growth removed from his head."
"How yellow! Was it anything very serious?"
"Not at all. He has only had his hair cut."

AN INGENUOUS BURGLAR.

How He Opened a Safe Without Tools or Explosives.

An extraordinary account is given of how a safe was opened by a robber who had at his disposal no instrument of any kind, but operated merely with his finger nail. The person who accomplished the feat revealed his intention of robbing the iron safe in a hotel to another young man, who happened to be the cousin of the hotel proprietor.

As a matter of course the proposed scheme to rob was revealed to the owner of the hotel, and a little before midnight, when it was to be put into execution, a couple of detectives were concealed behind the office counter.

A short time afterward the robber entered the office gently, without either tools or explosives wherewith to open the massive iron receptacle, the combination of which it was evident he did not know. He had, however, resorted to an ingenious plan of his own.

He had pared the nail of his index finger on the right hand until the blood vessels were exposed. Then by placing the sensitive wound on the combination lock he could distinguish the movements of the tumblers as they fell. For more than an hour did he work, and at last there came a sharp click, and he swung back the doors of the safe.

He was in the act of filling his pockets with the valuable papers it contained when a dumper was thrown upon his activity by the sudden grasp of the detectives, under whose escort he was taken to prison. —London Tit-Bits.

Danger in "Home Remedies."

"The trouble with poor persons who try to doctor themselves before coming here," said a physician in a public dispensary, "is that they do not know the first thing about the 'simple remedies,' as they call them, that they use. Oftentimes they do themselves serious injury through sheer ignorance. I had a man in here the other day who had taken half an ounce of cholera mixture. Somebody had told him to take half a teaspoonful. It is the same way with paregoric, sweet niter, ammonia and other well known household remedies. Persons who trust to their memory are likely to get mixed and either take an overdose or use the wrong medicine. A woman came in here suffering from the effects of a drug that she should never have obtained except on a physician's prescription. It was the big overdose and her prompt application for relief that saved her. When I scolded her she showed me a clipping from one of the magazines advising its use. The dose prescribed was enough to kill a horse." —New York Times.

The Menu Card in Its First Form.

In its old fashioned form the menu was usually written large on cards of such imposing dimensions that room for one only could be found at each end of the board. In the medieval dinner this aid to selection must have been an absolute necessity, for the medieval dinner was a mine of surprises. It was divided into courses, as are our own daily meals, but whereas nowadays the dinner has a general idea that dish will follow soup and that course is succeeded by relish, and can conceive generally the sort of demand that each course will make upon his appetite and digestion, there was no possible arguing as to what was going to happen at an early English dinner, and close study falls to reveal the existence of any principle of arrangement.

Discrediting an Astrologer.

A certain king says a tale from the Persian, asked an astrologer, "How many years of life remain to me?" The wise man replied, "Ten." The king became very despondent and betook himself, as one stricken with a sickness, to his bed. His vizier, who possessed great wisdom, sent for the seer and in the king's presence asked him, "How many years have you to live?" He replied, "Twenty." The vizier ordered that he should that very hour be executed in the king's presence. The king was satisfied and commended the sagacity of his minister, and no longer attached any importance to the astrologer's saying.

Eggs and Palates.

A writer in the Chicago Tribune says: "My people came from the north of Ireland. My great grandfather always stuck his knife in the bottom of his eggshells after he had eaten breakfast. My grandfather and father followed his example, and I have continued it. If you don't buy a the shells the danger is, as you see, that the eggs will be full of water. In the north of Ireland there are great lakes and bad roads. The bad roads will pay ticks on you if they can reach you. And our language their movements by tracking their boats."

Peeped Concealment.

She Walter Scott was asked why he had made Ellen Deans the lady of the loch.
"Deans?" he replied, "if I had made her the lady of the river there might have been a run on the bank."

Realizing the poet's pecuniary condition, his friends congratulated him on his foresight. —New York Tribune.

Mrs. Skapp—Yes, and they puff and blow about it so. —Philadelphia Press.

Under Water.

"What was the trouble?"
"He couldn't swim."
"What has that to do with his fall?"
"He got into a company where the stock was all water." —Exchange.

The Bartender's Revenge.

Since the bar is a necessary evil—to some folk—and is an institution of the state, being licensed, reference to it occasionally must be excused. There are some very clever men behind the bar, and once in awhile a gentleman, Tab is usually kept on him by the metal cash register. He feels that he is watched at all hours by a maze of patented machinery. If he steals a check of 15 cents he is caught, you may say. Not at all! The other day in a fashionable resort the proprietor, big and pompous, "called down" one of his men before some customers. As to the question of right or wrong I say nothing. But presently, when Signor Pomposity turned his back, the bar man emptied a full bottle of the finest whisky into the washing trough under the bar. It was worth at least $1.50. That was his way of getting even. I am informed that it is the usual way of resenting an insult from the proprietor. The mere stealing of 15 cents is a small matter when the bar man is to be trusted with thousands of dollars' worth of liquors. If a man is not to be trusted with change how is he to be trusted with liquors?—New York Press.

Grammar and Writing.

One day Julian Hawthorne was complimenting a certain writer on his wonderful facility in his handling of words and in his construction of sentences. "You are a master of phrases," said the novelist, with a twinkle, and then added:
"How do you do it, anyhow?"
"I don't know," replied the writer. "You see, I have forgotten all that I ever learned at school except that the proposition governs the objective case. To save my life I couldn't tell you the difference between the present tense and a predicate. I write by ear and don't know any more about grammar than a cockroach knows about painting roses on jugs."

"That's all right, my boy, that's all right," said Hawthorne dryly. "No man who's a purist and a master of style ever knows anything about grammar."

How Bright Joined Cobden.

John Bright's account of how he and Richard Cobden came to join forces against the corn laws early in the last century is as follows: "I was in the depths of grief. I might also say of despair, for the light and sunshine of my house had been extinguished. All that was left on earth of my life and of a too brief happiness was lying still and cold in the chamber above us. Mr. Cobden called upon me, and, having expressed words of condolence, said: 'There are thousands of houses in England at this moment where wives, mothers and children are dying of hunger. Now, when the first paroxysm of your grief is past I would advise you to come with me and we will never rest till the corn law is repealed.' The offer was accepted and the work was done."

A Queer Floating Island.

There is a floating island in Derwent-water, England, not far from Lodore falls. Its travelers are restricted to alternations between the bottom of the lake and the surface. When moved to retirement it sinks and remains in watery seclusion for periods which vary from a few months to as long as seven or eight years. Its existence above or below water appears to be determined by the presence within the island of gases whose quantity governs its buoyancy. Esthwaite lake, in the same neighborhood, boasts a not less puzzling but more amenable island. This has served as a ferryboat to conduct as many as fifteen persons at a time across the bosom of the water upon which it rides.

Affected It.—A noted Chicago wit and raconteur, addressing the Yale Society of New York at which Chauncey Dewey was presiding, won the attention and applause of the "warmed audience" by saying: "A new and powerful greyer has been discovered in Yellowstone park. It was named after your presiding officer." Presiding, with solemn countenance, all the cheering had ceased, he asked: "And it stimulates the greyer?"

Wages and Cost of Living.

The Employer's association has been investigating the cost of living, and announces that it has found that it has increased 15 per cent. in the past three years. There may be disagreement with its figures, but few will dispute its finding that the cost of living has increased.

It is announced that the members of the association will raise the wages of their employees to meet the increased cost of living. It is a somewhat belated concession, but better late than never. The action of the Chicago Employer's association, however, serves to emphasize the fact that labor has not profited from the "unprecedented era of prosperity" to the extent that the "full dinner pail" politicians have sought to make the public believe.

Though great fortunes have been accumulated as never before in the world's history, the workers are little better off than they were before "prosperity" set in. Whenever workmen have gone on a strike to secure a raise in wages to enable them to maintain their standard of living, it has been disclosed that they are living from hand to mouth. A few weeks' idleness brings them to the verge of starvation. The only real benefit that the workingman has received from the period of "prosperity" that followed on the heels of industrial revival has been that of steady employment. The wages he has received for his work have not secured to him more of the necessities of life than he was able to purchase with the wages he secured for the same work before the advent of "prosperity." He has created a great deal more wealth than he produced in times of industrial stagnation, but the surplus product has slipped through his hands.—Milwaukee News.

Evil in Squashville.

The power behind the Squashville Banner remarks editorially: "There are several growing evils in Squashville, to which we must allude briefly. Ever since we have had charge of this paper, we have set our foot down on everything that seemed demoralizing, and we do not propose to swerve an iota from our path."

"With have noticed a number of young ladies living in this village, going to business college and studying shorthand and typewriting. When we were a young man, girls were not permitted to act as stenographers or bookkeepers, but were kept in their proper places, i. e. the home. Lady stenographers are a menace to the community. For instance, Squire Featherhead, our genial justice of the peace, at one time employed Lem Bracewell as his secretary at a salary of $10 a week. Then along came Emily, the daughter of Postmaster Fenrick, and took the position at $25 a week, and Lem crowded out of his profession by cheap labor is now making ties over in Tucker's swamp. Bart Enslage, for many years a stenographer at the Farmers' Alliance store, where he drew $30 a month, has been fired to make room for Miss Julia Junpion, who gladly accepted the position at $10 a month. Whither are we drifting?"

"Another great evil that is threatening our fair village with disaster is the cooly pool table. We understand that Nate Crosscut did not go to church last Sunday night because he had played a game of pool in the afternoon and squandered the dime he had been saving for the contribution box. Several of our estimable young men have been suspected of playing this demoralizing and soul destroying game, though we have nothing but circumstantial evidence to convince us."

Other forms of depravity might be mentioned, but these will serve to show that Squashville, far from being the peaceful, prosperous, Christian community that it may seem, is rapidly degenerating. Something will have to be did and that very soon.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Very Old, But Very Good.

And Yawcob, observing his dog Schnitzel, spoke unto him as follows: "You was only a tog, but I wish I was you. Ven you go nit your bed in you shut cur round three dimes and lay down. Ven I go nit the bed in, I haf to lock up der place and vind der clock and put der cat out and namyself and my row wakes up and scolds, den der paby wakes up and cries and I haf to walk him nit der house around, den maybe ven I gets myself to bed it is time to get up vonce more again. Ven you gets up nit your bed you shut stretch yourself, dig your neck a leedle and you vas up. I haf to light der fire, put on der kettle, scrap some nit my vife alretty and get myself breakfast. You play nit der day all around and haf plenty of fun. I haf to work all der day round and haf plenty of drubble. Ven you die you was dead. Ven I die I haf to go to hell yet."

The Cayman Islands, lying near Jamaica, were swept by a hurricane August 11th and it is reported that all of the growing crops have been destroyed. These islands belong to Great Britain and have a population of about 4,500. Life must indeed be a strenuous existence in these outlying islands, as hardly a week passes without a report of some terrible disaster that has fallen upon them.

And now some of the republicans says it will be "Uncle Ike" Stephenson who will be the next candidate for governor on the republican ticket. Ike's wad cuts quite a swath in politics when he once gets started as has been demonstrated in years gone by.

WORK AND REST.

When they alternate perfectly, a man will enjoy both.

After work comes rest. When they alternate perfectly a man will enjoy both the work and the rest that follows it.

Nature is a just old lady. She seldom gives a man more than he needs. If he elects to live a lazy life she lets his muscles get flabby and his brain go sleepy. She never permits him to have a faculty or a nerve or a muscle or a sense that he does not use.

The proper way to keep your muscles or your faculties to use 'em up and let nature provide you with a fresh supply. Nature is assisted in this work by rest. One may rest sometimes by seeking a change of labor. Labor thus becomes a recreation—recreation.

To live happily in this world it is not enough to know how to work. A man must also know how to rest. The man who knows only how to work will soon wear out. If he doesn't wear out immediately his work will suffer in some way. No man can do his best work unless he alternates it with a little play or a little rest.

A man who can't drop his work from his mind as readily as he can drop his tools from his hands had better take a few weeks off to study the rest question. His nerves are not what they should be.

If a man wishes to keep his nerve, let him avoid nerves.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Fry Clay Buildings.

So long as the walls of a building are sound and the bricks or stones, well cemented together, other no fissures or cracks for the plant to force its way into, there is nothing whatever to fear. Should the fry, however, find an opening, and so thrust itself into the wall, the natural and continuous expansion of its parts will tend to loosen the stones and hasten the decay of the building.

A fair growth of fry on sound walls that allow of no advances beyond the superficial attachment of the claspers, or aerial roots, as they are called, is altogether beneficial. It promotes dryness and warmth, counteracts the corrosive action of the atmosphere and is at once a shelter and an ornament.

These aerial roots are not sources of nutrition, but merely serve as mechanical support to the climbing fry. The contention that they sap the whole of the moisture from mortar, leaving it excessively dry and crumbling, has therefore no foundation in fact.—London Standard.

A Disputed Toast.

At one time the officers under Lord Howe refused to drink his health at their mess, for, though a splendid admiral, he was not popular in the navy on account of a certain shyness and want of tact with those about him. The chaplain, who was a protégé of his lordship, was mortified at this and determined that the officers should drink to Lord Howe. When called upon for a toast one day he said, "Well, gentlemen, I can think of nothing better at this moment than to ask you to drink the first two words of the Third Psalm, for a Scriptural toast for once may be taken from one of my cloth." The toast was drunk. Not one of the officers indicated by word or look that he was ignorant of the words alluded to. On referring to the Bible it was found that the Third Psalm begins, "Lord, how are they increased!"

Covardly Brave Men.

It is related of a Missouri engineer that he does not hesitate to drive his machine at full speed through the blackest storm at night with wash-outs all around him, but that he is afraid to go home alone in the dark. If some one is not at the roundhouse to go with him he sits there till daylight. It is the old story of every man having his own peculiar fears. There is a doctor we know who will cut a man to pieces and smite the while. He is an old soldier and often faces the cannon's mouth. But he will betray the most abject terror if one of the harmless little elm tree worms happens to drop on his person.—Kansas City Journal.

Doctor's Recipe For Lemons.
Here is a scientific recipe for lemonade advocated by the medical profession: Wash the lemons thoroughly; slice thin and peel all cover with sugar, allowing the sugar to become saturated with the lemon juice by gently pressing the slices of lemon with a spoon. Then add water, slowly stirring all the while. For if used, should be used sparingly. One-third of a lemon to a glass is about right for home use.

A Good Suggestion.

"When I write a story," said the struggling young author, "I make out a list of ten magazines that I think might like it, and I usually go mighty close to the end of the list before I sell it."

"In that case," returned the wise business man, "I should think it would pay you to begin at the other end of your list."—Chicago Post.

MRS. CECILIA STOWE.
Orator, Entree Nons Club.

176 Warren Avenue, Chicago, Ill., Oct. 22, 1902.
For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation. My husband felt disheartened as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disconsolate place at best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine of Cardui for me to try, and he did so. I began to improve in a few days and my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

Cecelia Stowe
Mrs. Stowe's letter shows every woman how a home is saddened by female weakness and how completely Wine of Cardui cures that sickness and brings health and happiness again. Do not go on suffering. Go to your druggist today and secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui.

Gen. Miles Retirement

General Nelson A. Miles has been placed on the retired list, and from all that can be gathered, the administration was not very delicate in appraising of the fact. General Miles has been on the outs with the administration for some years, both the McKinley and Roosevelt factions, and the chief reason has seemed to be because he was failing for telling the truth, regardless of who might be effected thereby. Some times his sayings reflected discredit upon the administration and at times on the head of the army but it made no matter who it was, they got just what they had come without any mincing of words. General Miles entered the army at the commencement of the civil war as a lieutenant, and thru his ability as a military man he has been advanced until he occupied one of the highest positions in the army. He was not a West Point graduate, and this fact has been against him among a class of men who, thru mutual admiration, have become so bigoted and arrogant as to be disgusting in a great many instances to the people who are paying for their bread and butter. These West Pointers have for years had a penchant for belittling the work of a person who is not one of the appointed, and General Miles coming from this class has been against him all along the line. He may not have been met among the head ones in the army, but his deeds and honesty have endeared his memory to the common people of the country, and he will be remembered long after his opponents have passed into oblivion.

A Growing Necessity.

One of the things that the city government should attend to at once, one that some future time it will be impossible to remedy, is the widening of certain streets about the city, that are now very narrow, and even at the present time hardly able to accommodate the traffic that passes over them. The city now gives promise of enjoying a ready growth, and there is every evidence that in years to come wider streets will be necessary than at the present time, and if any change is to be made it should be made at once. There are several thoroughfares in almost the heart of the city where two teams can hardly pass even with only one sidewalk, and if there were two sidewalks of ordinary width there would be a little road left. These changes could be made at the present time with very little cost, while at some future time when the streets are lined with brick blocks it will be an impossibility.

The Time to Advertise.

Much has been said about the best time to advertise, and it had been regarded as sort of a loss of energy to carry on an energetic advertising campaign during the hot summer months. This has all changed, however, and only the inexperienced advertiser bothers himself or anyone else about the time to advertise, for he experienced advertiser, regardless of what his line may be, is fully aware of the fact that the time to advertise is all the time. That this is thoroughly appreciated by the leading concerns of the country is proved by the extensive summer campaigns which they carry out. Of course advertising in the summer time should be different from that of the winter, but there should be no let up whatever in the advertising. Some people put forth the argument that the summer months are dull, but if these misguided souls will ask the man who has advertised they will find that he isn't at all in foldrums over the condition of trade, and the difference is the result of his advertising. The newspapers are perhaps a little too lax in their efforts to get the business man to advertise during the so-called "dull months," made so partly by the lack of advertising. That a number of newspapers having already grasped the situation and are profiting by their realization of the facts of the case is evident in their advertising columns. More than one enterprising newspaper is carrying more advertising in July than they did in the early winter months. If a paper doesn't get its share of business in the summer, then its patrons don't get their share and it is the paper's duty to convince the business men of their error and corral their business. By doing this a paper adds to its own profits and also to those of the business man.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abcess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes of DuPont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by John E. Daly Drug Store. Price 50c, and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

QUINCY ADAMS SAWYER COMING.

The Best New England Play Ever Written. Will Be Here Soon.

One of the very first attractions of importance to be seen at the Grand Opera House will be the big rural comedy drama, "Quincy Adams Sawyer", which is now in the third season of continued success. The engagement here will be Oct. 2, '05 and a rare treat is in store for all theatre-goers who love that which is clean and exuberantly funny, with brilliant touches of refined pathos, in the bucolic drama. "Quincy Adams Sawyer" has achieved an enviable distinction as the best of all the country plays, for the faults of productions of this class were avoided by the dramatist in making his play from that book of the same name which is still having a big sale throughout the entire country (though now in its fourth year,) and the result is that there is no element, such as realism, comedy, pathos, or sentiment predominating, but a subtle combination of all. Above everything else the aim in "Quincy Adams Sawyer" has been to be lifelike and true to nature in both characters and the story. The accomplishment of this purpose has spelled the word success in capital letters. The time honored villains, farm mortgages, lost wills, cruel uncles, wronged girls, etc., which have done such valiant service in rural dramas for years are conspicuously and pleasingly absent in this play. Aside from the engagement here "Quincy Adams Sawyer" will spend over four months of its time during the coming season, in four cities only. It will be seen for two months in New York City, one month in Philadelphia, three weeks in Boston, and two weeks in Chicago.

The production is a very elaborate one and includes some fine effects in scenic realism, all the acts taking place in the country, and all the characters, except "Quincy Adams Sawyer" himself and one other, being rural types. This is one of the very few plays that the theatre-goers really cannot afford to miss. Its tremendous success elsewhere and the lavish encomiums of the press liberally endorse this assertion.

Fire Alarm System Defective.

During a conversation with Manager Starks of the Wood County Telephone company recently, that gentleman stated that the fire alarm system recently installed had not given the satisfaction that had been hoped for when installed. The original scheme had been to have gongs work at the different places where an alarm is sounded, the striking of the gongs being done by the operators in the telephone office.

The gongs were on a closed circuit, which necessitated a good sized battery to operate, and it was found upon testing up each morning that there was generally something the matter with the system so that the gongs failed to work satisfactorily. In order to remedy this defect the gongs have been replaced with ordinary telephone bells, which are rung by the operator the same as any telephone bell.

Another place where the system is defective is in the fact that when an alarm is turned in by phone the operator does not know in what ward the phone is located, so that the operator cannot give the required information to the engine house. Another defect lies in the fact that while we have a great many telephones in the city, still there are many places where a phone is not accessible, especially after working hours, and as consequence a night alarm could not be turned in without the loss of considerable valuable time. Mr. Starks is of the opinion that a system with boxes scattered about the city would prove much more effective, as then the boxes could be located in any part of the city where they are needed.

The east side has had some experience with a box system, and the same trouble existed as in all ways the case in small towns. The system was found to be so often out of order that it gradually fell into disuse thru lack of confidence and in time was entirely abandoned. To keep an alarm system that is strung over an entire city in good working order requires constant attention, and it is only from the fact that our present system is connected with the telephone office where it is tested daily that we have received even passable service.

"A Royal Slave" Pleases Grand Patrons.

"A Royal Slave" opened a three nights' engagement at the Grand last night, and was witnessed by a good house. The play is a romantic drama in five acts taken from the historic novel, "The Last of the Montezumas." The scenes are laid in the Casas Grandes mountains, in the state of Chihuahua, Mexico, and are wonderfully true to life. The cast, headed by Clarence Bennett, is strong and well balanced and taken as a whole the show is one of the best which has been at the Grand this season. Manager Kineman stated last night that he was more than satisfied with the opening. It is the first venture in playing three night stands, and if the attendance warrants it Marion will be placed in the Stair-Havilin circuit, which plays only the best popular priced shows on the road. "A Royal Slave" will be given two performances to-day and tomorrow.—Marion, Indiana News-Tribune. Will be at the Grand Opera house to-morrow night. Don't miss it.

Mr. Charles Theobald, an electrician with the Lincoln Light and Power Co., Lincoln, Ill., says: "I am occasionally troubled with severe headaches, the result of constipation and have at numerous times used Re-Go Tonic Laxative Syrup, which I think is the most satisfactory in its results of any medicine. It moves the bowels naturally and promptly, without pain or griping, and certainly cures the headaches caused by constipation. We always give it to our children to regulate and correct any bowel troubles." Sold by Sam Church, Druggist.

Foley's Kidney Cure is a medicine free from poisons and will cure any case of kidney disease that is not beyond the reach of medicine. Sold at Johnson & Hill Co.

The Following Items Concerning the Lumber Business at Merrill are Taken from the Mississippi Valley Lumberman: John O'Day & Co. has sold a tract of land in Iron county, estimated to contain 1,000,000 feet of white pine and other woods, hemlock and hardwood. The purchasers are Williamson & Libby of Oshkosh. Consideration is not stated.

The Badger Lumber Co. of Grand Rapids, in which A. H. Stange of this city is heavily interested, are engaged in doubling their plant and will in the near future greatly increase their business. The A. H. Stange Co. expects to start up their saw mill which has been shut down for the past six or seven weeks for repairs in a few days. While the saw mills of Merrill have anywhere from three to ten years ahead of them, the fact is demonstrated every once in a while that the pine timber on the Wisconsin and its tributaries is fast disappearing. Every now and then a saw mill is closed down here or there, which denotes, as we have said, the coming to end of the great pine lumber industries of northern Wisconsin. The going out of business of John O'Day & Co. of this city, for the past twelve years one of the largest logging concerns of northern Wisconsin, is a case in point. John O'Day & Co. have just finished loading their last logs which were cut last winter. They have sold their pine timber and disposed of their logging outfit. As soon as practical, the affairs of the company will be settled up. John O'Day & Co. was organized by Mr. John O'Day of this city, and Mr. John Daly of Grand Rapids, in 1892, about twelve years ago. In that time this concern has logged about 500,000,000 feet of logs. They have paid out hundreds of thousands of dollars for labor, merchandise, etc.

The rate at which our railroads are killing and maiming people continues steadily to increase. According to the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission on railroad accidents in the United States, within the three months ending March 31 last, 300 people were killed and 2,834 injured in train accidents. Other kinds of accidents, including those sustained by employees while at work, run up the total casualties to 827 killed and 11,481 injured. That these accidents cannot be put down entirely to the fault of the passengers and employees themselves is shown by the fact that during the quarter under consideration, 1,650 trains were in collision and 1,181 trains were derailed.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklin's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best Salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25c, at John E. Daly's Drug Store.

Notice of Application.

Wood County Court—In Probate. STATE OF WISCONSIN, ss. Wood County, ss. In the Matter of the Estate of Patrick Henry Harkin, deceased. On this 11th day of August, A. D. 1905, upon reading and filing the petition of Bertha Margaret Harkin stating that Patrick Henry Harkin of the county of Wood, died intestate on or about the sixteenth day of May, 1901, and praying that Patrick W.
